Wilson Changes Tactics to Include All Central Powers in Peace Pact

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, March 26.—Realizing that it is practically impossible to carry on the fight for confirmation of separate treaties with Germany and Austria-Hungary, President Wilson is now understood to be working for the completion of a general document to secure peace between the allies and all of the central powers. Already substantial progress has been made in this direction.

Many questions involve all of the nations of the German alliance, making it possible to draw up a treaty which could be subscribed to by the central powers. This would enable the allied armies to be demobilized at the same time and obviate discriminations against which the Italians have been complaining.

The change of p[illegible] followed the meeting of Pr[illegible]n, Premier Lloyd Geo[illegible] Clemenceau and Premi[illegible] at which confidential repo[illegible]e Hungarian situation were subm[illegible].

It is officially declared in both American and British circles that there is no reason to assume that the change of program will entail any great delays.

MANY SLAIN IN HUNGARIAN CAPITAL

Former President Karolyi Reported Assassinated in New Budapest Revolt

London, March 26.—Count Michael Karolyi has been assassinated and many other persons have been massacred in Hungary, according to reports received from Budapest today.

Karolyi was president of the Hungarian republican government up to last Saturday, when he resigned in favor of a Bolshevik dictatorship.

According to the rumors afloat at Prague, Count Karolyi was shot at Budapest, and an army officer was wounded at the same time.

Hundreds have been killed in violent street fighting at Budapest, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen this afternoon, quoting advices received there from Vienna. Riots are reported from other Hungarian cities, Bolsheviki mobs over-

OPPOSE GREATER BOSTON

Many Argue Against Mayor Peters' Bill at State House Hearing

Massed opposition from almost all the surrounding cities and towns of Greater Boston appeared in force at the State House today before the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs in opposition to Mayor Peters' Greater Boston Bill.

The opponents to the measure were led by ex-Representative J. Weston Allen of Newton. Also heard during the session were Mayor William Weeks of Everett and Felix Rackerman, former moderator of Milton.

Mr. Weston and Mayor Weeks made but few remarks, the latter confining his words to offering the typewritten copy of his speech.

The principal speaker was Mr. Rackerman, who occupied the greater part of the session. He criticised the speeches of the proponents, taking the points offered and showing the possibilities of objection to each. He also offered several recommendations to the committee and was not very complimentary to Boston. Some of the pithy points made by him were:

"Boston is the most extravagantly governed city of size in the United States."

"Boston should mend her ways as well as her highways."

"Streets of Boston are notoriously bad, while the highways of the suburbs are relatively good."

"The town government of Milton is the best in the world."

"To force a measure of this kind through the Legislature would mean loss of civic pride and a lowered standard of citizenship."

In speaking of the Boston police situation Mr. Rackerman said:

"Not so many years ago Boston was unfit to handle its own police scandals and finally the power of Boston police government had to be taken away and placed in the hands of the Governor. Suburban districts are policed now by local authorities, acceptable to the local people and excellently governed.

In referring to the proposed merger, Mr. Rackerman illustrated his point of Milton and Boston with a story saying, if five men with a bad reputation are living in one house and three men with a good reputation are living in another, you would not want to force them to both live in the one house.

RUMORS OF DIVORCE TRUCE

Newbury Questioned About $100 Dinner for Ruth Shepley, Actress

Fall River, March 26.—Judge Quinn announced today that owing to several developments in the cross divorce suit of Thompson Newbury of Newport and Mrs. Mabel Gould Slocum Stickney Newbury, no further hearings of the case would take place in this city at this session of court.

Neither the attorney for the husband nor the attorney for the wife would make any statement in regard to this sudden ending of the case, as both had pledged secrecy to the court.

It was rumored, however, that the family of Thompson Newbury had made a cash settlement with the wife.

At 10:55 in the morning session a recess was ordered to permit Attorney Thurston to consult with his medical experts, Drs. John G. Perry and Alexander Quackenbosa of Boston, the two physicians whom Thompson Newbury consulted for his eye troubles. Neither physician was permitted to take the stand.

One hundred dollar dinners in New York in honor of Ruth Shepley, the actress, and $85 birthday dinners at a Boston hotel were features of the morning testimony.

Thompson Newbury, who was accused of giving the dinner for Miss Shepley, could not recall just when or where it was, but knew that he had dinner with Miss Shepley in New York some time in 1916.

QUESTION OF EXTRAVAGANCE.

The dinner in the Boston hotel was given in honor of Mr. Newbury's birthday and was contrary to his wishes, he said.

IMPOSTOR ADMITS GUILT

Man Selling "Welcome Banners" Unlawfully Wore Wound and Service Stripes

"Beware of fake schemes of uniformed soldiers selling 'Welcome Home' banners for the Yankee Division on Boston streets or elsewhere."

This warning was spoken today by Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, commanding the Department of the Northeast and former commander of the 26th Division.

This was right after General Edwards had had before him one William J. Phelps of New York, accused of wearing a soldier's uniform to which he was not entitled, while in the act of selling goods.

The uniform included overseas and wound stripes. Phelps admitted to the indignant general that he was entitled to neither.

He also admitted that he had made $200 a month by selling these banners under false representation that the proceeds were for the benefit of wounded soldiers.

HAD FOUR WOUND STRIPES.

Phelps was brought in by men of the Intelligence Department at army headquarters, who have been running down men "profiteering" upon the public by selling Yankee Division banners under false pretences.

He wore four wound stripes and three overseas stripes, purporting to show that he had been in service abroad eighteen months or more.

Phelps admitted that he had seen nine months service in a Florida camp, from which he was discharged last January. He admitted to General Edwards that he never saw service abroad.

General Edwards said later:

"There are all kinds of schemes to make money. I want the public to buy nothing of this type. If a uniformed soldiers is selling these wares, there is something wrong.

48-HOUR BILL FOR WOMEN AND MINORS

A big victory for organized labor was won today, when the committee on social welfare, in executive session, voted to report the bill for a 48-working-hour week for women and minors. The present limit is 54 hours.

There was no dissent recorded against the proposed 48-hour week, but several members dissented, on the ground that the bill should be framed, so as to allow manufacturers to have the 48 hours distributed over five instead of six days.

KOEHLER SAYS GERMANY MUST HAVE FOOD TO BLOCK BOLSHEVISM

U. S. OFFICER TELLS TEUTON PLANS TO RECUPERATE

By DELT M. EDWARDS,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1919, by the International News Service.)

London, March 26.—Germany needs two things badly—food and raw materials. She needs both for her own preservation. She needs food to keep her poor people, who have no moneyto purchase at profiteer prices, from suffering and from actual starvation within another month; she needs it to keep her workmen out of Bolshevism.

She needs raw materials partly for the same reason, to block Bolshevism and to help her regain her place once more in the commercial world, to pay the enormous war debt, saddled onto her by the Kaiser and his military advisers.

These facts are pointed out by Lieutenant Commander Hugo W. Koehler of the United States navy, who has just returned from a six-weeks' tour of Germany.

"As regards the food situation," said Commander Koehler, "the unequal distribution is noticeable. It is quite simple for individuals to get as much food as they want, far more than the regular allowance, if they can pay for it. The prices are exhorbitant. The fare at the more expensive hotels, is, on the whole, very good. For example, at the hotel in Bremen we had hors d'oeuvres, soup, fish, roast goose, stuffed potatoes, red cabbage, cheese, ice cream and cake. The portions were all large and I must say that I have had much worse in London at times.

SHOWS UNEQUAL DISTRIBUTION.

"After the meal the manager came bristling up to me in a great flurry and said that he hoped we did not think that what we had was the average dinner at the hotel for, on the contrary, it was a special dinner provided for us. Inasmuch as I had already noticed that all the other guests were eating the same kind of food, and that all these articles were on the bill of fare, it was obvious that this explanation was simply another attempt to impress us with the fact that Germany is in a state of starvation. The lunch the following day we had hors d'oeuvres, soup, roast beef, mashed potatoes, cabbage and jelly pancakes.

"Of course these menus are no indication of the amount of food in Germany, but they do demonstrate very clearly that food is not fairly distributed.

"The Germans are not starved, but they are pretty hungry. One sees a good many double chins and paunches still, that is, among the men. The women really look emaciated. They have suffered from the food shortage a great deal more than the men. The saddest thing, however, is the suffering among the children. They show it markedly. Infant mortality has been very high and still is, though not as bad as in the Winter of 1916-1917.

IN PANIC FOR HORSEFLESH.

"Meat sells at 20 to 30 marks a pound, including bone. To illustrate the scarcity, during an attack of Spartacans in Wilhelmshaven a horse in a passing cart was shot. Within twenty minutes after it fell every shred of flesh had been stripped from its bones. This indicates the meat shortage. Grocer shops appear fairly well stocked, but prices are enormous.

"Practically everything is rationed, including clothing. Great quantities of potatoes and cabbage are on hand, and, counting the difference in exchange, they can be bought cheaper here than in England. Practically no vegetables of any kind are on hand. No tinned vegetables are obtainable.

"Fats do not exist. There is an almost total absence of soap. They have a substitute which is said to be very good. The bread is bad. It is made of Wurzel meal, as potatoes cannot be spared for meal. There is very little milk in the country."

BLOODSTAINS ON DR. WILKINS' SUIT FOUND

Employes of Dry Cleaning Establishment to Testify in Coming Trial

Mineola, L. I., March 26.—New witnesses against Dr. Walter K. Wilkins, under indictment for the murder of his wife, were unearthed today, it was announced at the office of District Attorney Charles Weeks. They are employes of a dry cleaning establishment in New York who removed bloodstains from a suit belonging to Dr. Wilkins four days after the murder.

The suit, according to these witnesses, was pepper and salt colored. Dr. Wilkins has contended that he wore a dark suit on the night of the murder. According to detectives there are no bloodstains on the dark suit.

The Nassau County authorities are receiving hundreds of letters relative to the Wilkins case. Several of them assert that Dr. Wilkins is innocent, but little importance is attached to the communications by the District Attorney.

Afterward Budapest was isolated, and it is not known whether street fighting is now in progress there.

The fate of the allied mission, including American members, is unknown.

A new Red army is being formed in Hungary, said a wireless press dispatch from Zurich. The Soviet government at Budapest has ordered the newspapers not to criticise the communist movement.

Spartacans at Danzig Openly Hostile to Men of the Allied Mission

By MRS. GERCIL CHESTERTON.
Exclusive Cable to the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Warsaw, via London, March 26.—News of the bloody revolt in Hungary has greatly excited the Spartacans at Danzig and hostile demonstrations against the allied mission headed by Colonel Marechal have followed.

The Spartacans, however, have not generally taken part in riots which were incited by public placards.

German officials held a mass meeting at the market place where speakers urged action against the Poles. Orators declared that forced Polish shops. Special editions of the newspapers warn the Poles to remain indoors to avoid trouble.

An unconfirmed report is in circulation that the allied mission at Danzig, which contains some American members, has been put under arrest. Another report was that anti-Polish crowds demanded that the members of the mission be confined to the hotel where they are living. There was looting throughout Sunday and Monday, instigated by the German military and civil authorities as a protest against the transfer of Danzig from Germany to Poland.

WILSON CHANGES TACTICS ON LEAGUE

Now Seeking to Secure Peace Between Allies and All Central Powers

twining problems which it was almost impossible to separate.

KNOTTIEST PROBLEM.

It was then decided to group all of the problems in a general treaty for submission to all the powers involved.

Inasmuch as the United States was making war only against Germany and Austria-Hungary, the treaty signed by the American commissioners and submitted to the United States Senate for ratification will affect only these two nations.

However, as the League of Nations constitution is to be an integral part of the first peace treaty, thereby involving mandatories affecting states created from parts of the present Turkish empire, and as the United States is sponsoring the league, it will be necessary for Bulgaria and Turkey to write into the treaty their acceptance of the principles of the international society.

This would compel the United States to accept the Turkish and Bulgarian signatures to the compound document.

The knottiest problem engaging the attention of the President and the Premiers today was reparation from Germany. Premier Clemenceau is still insistent that the largest possible amount be exacted.

This is admittedly a great obstacle, inasmuch as the attitude of both the Americans and British is opposed to the complete stripping of Germany. The British and Americans hold that Germany should be compelled to make complete payment without being thrown into bankruptcy.

The Anglo-American position might be stated as follows:

"Germany must be left with sufficient earning power to pay, although she must be compelled to pay as much as her capacity admits."

The surrender of German territory is another complication which is increasing the difficulty of securing a successful agreement. However, substantial progress has been made on this question, also.

A conference was held today at the "Parisian White House"—the residence of President Wilson.

While there is a division of opinion as to the length of time it will require to carry out the new program, it is understood that the President is most hopeful that everything will be completed, including the signatures to the first treaty, before the end of April, enabling him to return to the United States and summon an extra session of Congress by the middle of May in order to complete appropriation bills. At present continue the resolutions making current appropriations available for the coming fiscal year before the new appropriations are required July 1.

The decision to make a compound treaty has aroused keen interest in all circles. One of the chief causes leading to the change of program was the unrest and disorder in Hungary.

It is officially stated that the President and the premiers are taking up the hardest problems first, leaving the minor ones to be worked out later.

At a meeting on Tuesday the President and the premiers discussed with Marshal Foch the military situation in Russia.

Karolyi Applauds Peace Principles of Wilson

By Universal Service.

Berlin, March 26.—Count Karolyi's swan song has just reached the German press from Budapest. It is a statement written by him while he was hoping against hope to steady his tottering regime, and just before he resigned as the first President of the Republic of Hungary, delivering the country to the Bolshevists. Here it is:

By COUNT MICHAEL KAROLYI.

At the Berne Congress of the Internationale, as well as at the Paris Peace Conference, the question of the responsibility for the war has been raised. This question must be answered. We want to know what countries and individuals, besides militarism, were responsible for the continuation of the war.

Though the war is over, it seems, unfortunately, that Rumania wishes to outdo the Teutonic atrocities. In the occupied territories of Transylvania, where the Hungarian population, appealing to justice and morality, is suffering martrydom, the Rumanians are whetting their hatred by mediaeval cruelties.

The Hungarian people protest against these barbarities and appeal to their former friends and the public opinion of the civilized west. We implore protection.

I and all my followers are the more justified in demanding a rigid investigation, for I can say, with loud ernest and challenging successful contradiction, that I have never, never, spoken a word or written a single line favoring the war or the alliance with Germany.

I stood on President Wilson's side and championed his standpoint with all possible emphasis and vigor even in the days when the Germans won their greatest victories. I feel, therefore, doubly entitled to demand today the fulfilment of the Wilsonian principles. For that new order will not only do away for all time with trenches but also with economic barriers.

In vain the opponents of these principles are trying to arouse the world against those lofty ideas. I trust in the victory of the pacific doctrines of Wilson, and I do not believe that the great President will permit it that instead of peace punitive expeditions are undertaken against innocent peoples and that after the old imperialism, which is ended, a new imperialism should arise and again menace the peace of the world.

I trust in true, democratic, permanent peace—not a peace signifying merely an armistice—and I do so also with redoubled faith because America and President Wilson will in this find strong and sincere support among the truly democratic political leaders of Italy, England and France.

It is unbelievable and impossible that half Europe should be plunged into eternal bitterness and hatred by a humiliating peace of conquest. We have faith, therefore, that not only the Great Powers will grasp the necessity of a durable peace, and that a durable peace can be built only on the foundation of the Wilsonian principles, that only such a peace will be respected by all peoples, but I have faith also that before long the small nationalities surrounding us will realize that unbounded lust of conquest and greed for booty do not serve their own interests.

SALVATION BY WORK.

Though we are face to face surrounded on all sides by enemies, I do not despair but believe we can remove difficulties and that reason and conciliation will take the place of distrust.

I have sought during the war to bring about conciliation with Italy and I have found willingness in Italy part. I sought, through the mediation of the Italian foreign minister, Baron Sonnino, and several Italian political leaders, to form a bond that should bind Italy and Hungary together. I tried to bridge our differences and I can truthfully say that it was not Sonnino's fault that this failed, but rather the fault of the incompetent Austrian diplomacy.

The new Hungary will be created by work, creative work. Not rifles and grenades will we hereafter give our people, but ploughs and hammers. Through work, and work alone, Hungary will reach a new civilisation, the morality of democratic work, which will make us worthy to perfect the adherence to the great nations of the West.

ARREST LAWYER OF WALTHAM ON THEFT CHARGE

Bernard F. Murphy, a Waltham attorney, was arrested today by Police Inspector Lawrence J. McCarthy of Waltham, on a secret indictment returned by the Middlesex County Grand Jury charging him with stealing $431.58 from Mrs. Mary McDonough of Waltham. It is claimed that this money was taken between May 16, 1914, and January 31, 1919.

Murphy appeared in the Superior Criminal Court before Judge Dubuque and pleaded not guilty. Bail, which was originally fixed at $1,500, was later reduced to $500 by Judge Dubuque, after Murphy stated that there was nothing to the case as far as he was concerned, and that he did not intend to run away.

Attorney Murphy is well known in Waltham, where he has practiced for several years. He was at one time a partner of ex-Mayor Patrick J. Duane, now United States deputy marshal.

SERVICE NOTES

Men are wanted to drive motor trucks for the army, according to a statement issued today by Colonel Albert S. Williams, chief of staff of the Northeastern Department. There are trucks for moving the 26th division to and from Camp Devens during the parade, but not enough to handle them. Applications are to be made to Captain T. H. Brown, Motor Transport Corps, No. 39 Chauncy street.

* * *

Captain Raymond B. Nicholson of the signal corps office, Washington, is closing many of the Government contracts in and around Boston.

* * *

Major-General Clarence R. Edwards commanding the Northeastern Department today said that of the Yankee Division from overseas, not counting the men who have already been discharged from that division, 75 per cent. of them will parade. The other 25 per cent. may be sent to camps nearest their own homes outside of New England, to be demobilized.

* * *

Brigadier-General Ramsay D. Potts of Washington whose son Colonel Douglas Potts is in the 102nd infantry will be given a stand place in the parade of the Yankee Division.

* * *

Major Pieter Vetterslmer has installed a telephone system at the army supply base, South Boston, which will enable officers to the transports arriving, to telephone direct from the vessels after they have docked. A complete cable system has also been installed here by the signal corps department.

* * *

Every camp will have a traveling exhibition of farmers, working materials, arranged by Major H. T. Sivell in charge of training camp activities at army headquarters who is not only looking after the entertainment of the men in camp life, but "will soon introduce practical lessons in all branches of useful knowledge.

The men in camp life are asking for knowledge of agricultural machinery and what can be done for farming on a large scale.

FIRST UNIT OF 26TH GIVEN DISCHARGE

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, March 26.—The first unit of the Yankee Division to reach this country as a whole—the 101st Trench Mortar Battery—is demobilized.

Singing and cheering, the men passed in single file by the camp disbursing officer today and received their honorable discharges and final pay.

Every man was given an excellent character recommendation on his discharge.

Pausing a few minutes to shake hands with each other and say goodby and cheer lustily for their officers, the boys boarded trains for Portland, Me., and Boston.

All expect to march in the division parade in Boston early in May.

Just before the men started down to be mustered out of the service, they were addressed by Captain James A. Walsh of Lawrence, Mass., formerly of Mayfair street, Roxbury.

Captain Francis D. Harrigan of Dorchester, one of the camp morale officers, spoke to the battery and about 2,000 other soldiers in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. requesting that they continue in civilian life as honorably and valiantly as they had when soldiers. He presented the commendation of Major-General M. F. McGlin.

Four dashing lieutenants started gaily up the street with four demure misses.

"Shh!" echoed across the street from a hallway. Then in the most approved sleuth style came out from the darkness' mysterious figures. There was a grim army officer, several soldier detectives, a corporal of artillery wearing a fur collared coat and Charlie Chaplin moustache, a tall man with long overcoat and a short man with a short coat.

On went the lieutenants right to the door of a hotel. And then—everything ended with a few whispered "good nights" and promises to meet at the camp in the morning.

Disgruntled and chagrined the sleuths returned, each party blaming the other for "gumming the works." Meanwhile the young ladies just chuckled.

That the government is ready to take over this cantonment and garrison it with a permanent force is evidenced by the fact that Frederick Wetherbee of Braintree, a civil engineer, is rushing a survey of the land. Mr. Wetherbee has been busy the past few days locating obscure boundaries and investigating titles at the Registry of Deeds, East Cambridge.

Major George H. Schumaker, camp quartermaster, will solicit bids from farmers shortly to supply 2,000 quarts of milk daily for the Yankee Division.

TENTATIVE ROUTE OF PARADE.

"We are going to have the help of Police Superintendent Michael J. Crowley in rounding up these fellows. I believe that there is a gang of them in Boston. They've got to get out of here. I won't stand for it."

The route of the Yankee Division parade is yet to be officially announced. But it has been settled that, despite requests which have reached army headquarters, the parade will not march through school street and by the front of City Hall. Court street is being considered, however. That would take the parade by the Court street side of City Hall annex.

General Edwards favors a floral memorial of each section or other suitable form at the intersection of Arlington street and Commonwealth avenue.

The parade route, as projected at present, will be as follows:

Form on Cambridge side of Charles River esplanade, Harvard Bridge to Boylston, Massachusetts avenue, Columbus avenue, Park square, Boylston street, Tremont street (possible detour via Boylston place, Washington street, Court street, Tremont row, up Tremont street to Park street), up Park, Beacon, Arlington and out Commonwealth avenue.

The parade may continue to the Fenway for disbanding, or may return to Cambridge for that purpose. The possible turn from Tremont street, through Temple place, Washington and Court streets, will bring City Hall annex into the parade zone. But it will also take the marchers through the narrower down-town streets. It is to be carefully considered and the route kept to the streets best suited for marching.

Colonel Albert S. Williams, chief of staff of the Northeastern Department, received word from the War Department today that men in the 26th Division who do not belong to New England will be mustered out at their point of home.

Graduated tickets for the parade in Boston about May 4 of the 26th (Yankee) Division will be distributed on application. Those in accordance with methods to be announced the end of the week by Henry Parker, chairman of the ticket committee.

Relatives of men in the division will receive tickets, also, but the home's family will receive two, and possibly three, depending upon the present plans.

A special bureau will handle applications for tickets made by relatives of soldiers not in Boston.

It is estimated that more than 1,000,000 people will be in Boston for the parade, and although the stands will be added along Commonwealth avenue and into the Fenway, they cannot accommodate more than a fraction of those who will want seats.

There will be a floral memorial, probably near the State House, where wreaths and flowers may be kept in honor of dead division members, but General Edwards has stated that he will permit no floral pieces on the caissons. The men will march in their overseas caps.

GIRL HELD ON CHARGE OF ENTERING STORE

Florence E. Newfield, twenty-three, pretty and well gowned, was arraigned in Rutland square today charged with breaking and entering Margaret Armstrong's clothes designing establishment at No. 266 West Newton street and stealing $150 worth of lingerie and fabrics. It court she admitted taking some of the articles, but he was held until tomorrow. The girl said her home was in Manchester, N. H.

REPORTS TROOPSHIP SAILS FOR THIS PORT TODAY

A cablegram was received today by Inspector Maurice Wolf of police headquarters from his son, Sergeant Paul W. Wolf, saying: "We are leaving Brest, France, on the Agamemnon, and will be in Boston April 7." The cablegram is supposed to refer to several small detachments, which it had been previously announced would sail from Brest on Friday.

442 WAR CASUALTIES AMONG MEDICAL HEROES

Washington, March 26.—Casualties among medical officers from July 1, 1917, to March 13, 1919, totalled 442, the War Department announced this afternoon. There were 46 deaths in action, 23 deaths from wounds and 101 from disease. More than 280 medical officers were awarded in various degrees.

FIRST OF "Y. D." UNITS TO SAIL FOR HOME FRIDAY

The first large units of the Yankee Division to say good-by to France will sail from Brest on Friday. This is the information received by Sheriff Peters of Pittsburg of Colonel William H. Dolan of that city, commander of the 101st Headquarters Train and Military Police. The announcement does not conflict with the earlier one that about half the division will leave the French embarkation port on Sunday, as Colonel Dolan evidently refers to a few detachments. They are coming on the Agamemnon. Among them are 110 Fitchburg boys.

NICHOLAS ROOSEVELT TO REPORT ON HUNGARY

VERBAL AGREEMENT BY HALLETTS, SAYS WOMAN WITNESS

LIFE ON FARM AT GRAFTON DESCRIBED BY WOMAN

Mrs. Philip Schnitzbam of Buffalo, a comely young matron of French descent, gave interesting testimony at the trial of the Hardy-Hallet $50,000 suit in the Suffolk Superior Civil Court today regarding life on the Grafton dairy farm of the late Daniel E. Hallet of this city.

An exchange of promises between young Hallet and his father, Daniel B. Hallet, was related in her testimony.

Mrs. Schnitzbam was called as a witness for Mrs. Maxine J. Hardy of West Newton street, who is suing the elder Hallet for $50,000 on the ground that he had promised to give her that sum, as half of his son's estate, on her agreement not to bring a breach of promise suit against the son.

Mrs. Schnitzbam was asked about a conversation she had with the elder Hallet in 1917, about one and one-half years before the son died. She said:

"I was dusting the hall at No. 226 West Newton street (where Mrs. Hardy lived and where young Hallet had lodged at times). The old man (the elder Hallet) called me into a room and wanted me to give him some paper. The son was in the room and said to his father: 'There's no need of paper. You keep your promise and we'll keep ours.' The father replied: 'I'll keep my promise if you keep yours.'"

DESCRIBES LIFE ON FARM.

Mrs. Schnitzbam, in cross-examination, was shown a type-written paper, the contents of which were not made public. She denied that she had seen the elder Hallet sign his name as witness to his son's signature to the paper.

The witness said she arrived in this country from Europe in 1906 at the age of 14 and went to Mrs. Hardy's West Newton street house to live. She helped Mrs. Hardy.

She testified to going to the younger Hallet's dairy farm in Grafton with Mrs. Hardy, where they lived for three years, beginning in 1912. Mrs. Hardy, she said, assisted young Hallet in managing the farm, working in both house and garden.

She was questioned whether young Hallet drank there. She said:

"During the first year and one-half I was at Grafton he did not drink. He managed the place—a large dairy farm employing as many as ten men. Sometimes he drank once in three months, or once in six months during the last part of the time I was there."

"Old Mr. Hallet was at the farm at times to rest. The relations there between him and his son and Mrs. Hardy were always pleasant. The old man ate at the same table with them and entertained some of his friends at the farm."

She said that young Hallet seemed in normal health and was able to drive his automobile and motorcycle.

Anthony Oak, proprietor of a Worcester garage and chauffeur for young Hallet at Grafton from November, 1914, to July, 1917, testified that he drove the young man often and thought him normal in habits. He said the elder Hallett was at Grafton about once a month and relations were friendly.

In cross-examination Oak said he took young Hallett to the Hotel Bancroft, Worcester, about once a month, but that Hallett did not get liquor there every time.

William Gill of No. 1761 Washington street, Roxbury, ironworker and friend of young Hallett, testified that he was with the young man many times and 5 last, the Friday and Saturday before his death, and he seemed all right. They were at the Boston Athletic Association two hours and had a few glasses of ale. Neither, Oak said, was intoxicated.

Q—Did he sign for thirteen drinks at the B. A. A.? A.—I don't know how many he signed for.

Charles E. Rapp, carpenter, said young Hallet seemed normal to him.

An inventory of the son's estate was introduced. It showed personal estate amounting to $64,684, but no real estate. It had been supposed that the young man left about $100,000.

SOUTH BOSTON BOY IS KILLED BY AUTO TRUCK

Stephen Joyce, nearly four years old, was instantly killed in front of his home, No. 19A street, South Boston, when he was struck and run over by a big auto truck. The truck owned by Daniel A. Dunn, was operated by Joseph W. Reynolds, who will be arraigned in South Boston Court.

MILK PROFITS FROM BABIES, SAYS THORE

Urges Bill to Save Costs in Distribution Through State Bounty and Control

"A bill to prevent the milk trust from coining dividends out of dead babies," is the description given by Wendell Philips Thore, now before the legislative committees on agriculture and health, sitting jointly, which seek to establish public control of the retail milk business and to stimulate milk production in Massachusetts by awarding an annual bounty to farmers for the keeping of cattle.

"My bill will lower the price of milk to the consumer to a reasonable figure by increasing local milk production and at the same time eliminate the stupid and criminal duplication of effort which is a well-known part of the present expensive system of distribution," declared Mr. Thore today.

"Everybody knows that the cost of supporting a dozen milk delivery wagons on the same street is the chief reason for the high cost of milk.

"My plan would give the State the power to simplify distribution by confining the labor and expense to a single large truck in each district served, thereby saving the enormous cost of from six to twelve single delivery wagons which now tread on each other's heels, so to speak, in competing for trade in the thickly populated districts.

"Only ten per cent. of the milk consumed in the Metropolitan District is raised in Massachusetts. Much of the cost of transporting milk from Canada, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

"If the State would authorize a bounty to make it worth while for farmers to keep milch cattle, we could be saved the enormous cost of expressing milk from vast distances."

FEDERAL FIGURES SHOW 373,083 OUT OF WORK

Washington, March 26.—The number of unemployed in the country for the current week is 373,083, a reduction of 1,792 from last week, according to a statement of the United States Employment Service.

Cleveland with 69,000; Detroit, 22,550, and Buffalo, 20,000, are the three cities reporting the largest surpluses.

Mobile and Birmingham, Ala., show scarcity of labor's supply and demand. District of Columbia, Jacksonville, Louisville, Wilmington, Charleston and Columbia report a shortage of labor aggregating 2,500.

Memphis, Tenn., has a surplus of 500 colored farm laborers. Georgia reports a surplus of 2,500. Louisiana reports labor supply and demand about equal.

TEUTONS STILL HOLD 156 U. S. MEN CAPTIVE

Washington, March 26.—Prisoners captured by the Central Powers from the American forces, the War Department announces of doubtful status March 20 number 156. A list of these names has been forwarded to the American Expeditionary Forces for investigation.

Only one American officer of rank as high as lieutenant-colonel was captured. Four majors, 27 captains and 363 lieutenants were taken prisoner.

PROTEST CHARGE FOR VICTORY PARADE SEATS

Worcester, March 26. — Worcester parents are protesting against the proposed charge of $2 for grandstand seats for the victory parade of the Yankee Division in Boston. J. R. Gendreau of No. 48 Carroll street, who has three sons in the division, attacks the proposed charge as unfair to fathers and mothers, who have already made sacrifices enough.

MISS THORNDIKE, GUIDE OF 9 SIGHTLESS HEROES

Miss Rosanna D. Thorndike, Boston society girl, who, serving as army nurse overseas, returned on the George Washington as guide to soldiers blinded in battle for freedom of the world.

New York, March 26.—Nine sightless heroes of the war led by a Back Bay society girl—this was the grimly pathetic feature of the arrival of the transport George Washington from overseas. The society girl was Miss Rosanna D. Thorndike, daughter of Albert Thorndike of No. 331 Beacon street, Boston, who for nineteen long months has been a nurse with the American Expeditionary Forces.

Sad as was the spectacle of the nine young veterans staring blankly out over New York harbor at the city's sky line and listening apathetically to the echoing blares of many bands that were triumphantly leading the homecoming people of the famous 27th Division on shore, it was inspiringly relieved by the presence of the devoted society girl nurse and her assistant, Dorothy Richardson of Woodstock, Ct.

For nearly two months Miss Thorndike, who prior to becoming a nurse was one of the most active members of Boston's younger society set, has been in charge of the nine sightless men. She had been first assigned to duty in Paris, but had secured her transfer to the fighting front where tin hat and gas mask were as necessary a part of her equipment as thermometer and chart. Eventually she was moved to the hospital at Savenoy in Loire, where the war-blinded Americans are treated.

It was characteristic of Miss Thorndike to have no one at the dock to meet her so that her attention in her charges might not be distracted. Others of the casual companies arriving on the George Washington were largely from the Yankee Division.

"KEGGY," RETURNED FROM WAR, TAKEN FOR GHOST

Junction City, Mo., March 26.—"Keggy" Hawkins, a colored soldier of this city, reported killed in battle some months ago, had a hard time convincing his relatives he was not his own ghost when he arrived home. He walked in on them unannounced.

Hawkins was with the 364th Infantry, and in the last battle he was in became separated from his unit. He found himself with the 311th Infantry. Doctors told him he was gassed.

The officers of the 346th, unable to find him after the battle, reported him missing and later killed.

REPORTED DEAD, NURSE WIRES FITCHBURG HOME

Fitchburg, March 26.—Reported to have died from pneumonia in France, Miss Ruth E. Hawkins, a Peter Bent Brigham Hospital unit nurse from this city, is very much alive as she made it known to her mother by telegram upon her arrival from overseas in New York. She will return home in a few days with the gold service chevrons and citation for bravery during an air raid on her hospital.

SEEK REDUCTION OF COAL PRICES AT CONFERENCE

Mine Operators and Dealers Meet Industrial Board in Effort to Stimulate Business

Washington, March 26.—An effort to stimulate production of coal by reducing the prices to somewhere near the pre-war basis was made today when a committee composed of mining officials and dealers met with the industrial board of the Department of Commerce.

This committee headed by J. H. Wheelwright, president of the National Coal Association, is the largest in numbers of any yet convened by the industrial board, more than 100 representatives being present.

The coal industry is at a low ebb, few of the mines producing anywhere near their capacity and members of the board said today that if a basis of lower prices to hold good for the remainder of the year can be agreed upon, the public might be induced to place orders for next winter's coal, thus giving work to thousands of unemployed miners.

The coke producers also were represented at the conference.

Representatives of the glass industry also met today to consider price reductions and they were to be followed by the building hardware trades.

Chairman George W. Perk of the industrial board expressed himself as highly gratified at what the board had thus far accomplished and predicted renewed activity within a relatively short time.

FITCHBURG ARMY NURSE BACK FROM OVERSEAS

Fitchburg, March 26.—Miss Margaret M. Ward, sister of Attorney Peter F. Ward, has arrived home after having been on duty as army nurse in France since August 21, 1917. Miss Ward was one of the sixty-five nurses connected with the base hospital eight and sailed for overseas duty on July 30, 1917, in the transport Saratoga. When just outside New York harbor the boat was rammed by the Pahama and everything belonging to those on board was lost.

WINDSOR, N. S., IS SWEPT BY FLAMES

Halifax, March 26.—Fire destroyed a large part of Windsor, forty-six miles west of here. It started by the explosion of a boiler, spreading rapidly on special trains helped the local fire fighters.

DISCLOSE PLOT FOR CHINESE 'RED' RULE

Document Also Shows New League Urging Intermarriage With White Women

By International News Service.

Vancouver, B. C., March 26.—A remarkable and elaborately drawn document found on the person of Dr. Chen Sue Yen, having for its purpose the promotion of intermarriage with women of the white races and the establishment of the principles of Soviet democracy in the Celestial empire, is in possession today of the Dominion authorities who are investigating the activities of the Chinese National League, an organization said to be vigorously functioning in every quarter of the globe.

Dr. Yen, who is editor of a publication known as the New Republic, and whose arrest followed the assassination of Chinese Ambassador Chen recently, is charged with being one of the heads of the organization. He is also known to have a copy of the secret treaty between Japan and China, which was stolen from the Chinese peace delegates while on the way to Paris.

Members of the league are secretly trained and drilled in Canada and then sent home to join the Southern revolutionary army, and the names of these are recorded and kept on file at the head office, which is in this city.

The document shows further that at the annual general meeting this year delegates from practically every town and village in Canada were represented. Where the league, or tong, is sufficiently strong it is ordered that all Chinese refusing to join shall be driven from that city.

EX-MAYOR MULLEN DENIES EJECTMENT AT EVERETT

Ex-Mayor John J. Mullen of Everett denied today the report that he had been ejected fro ma reception and banquet given to the discharged service men of the city at the State Armory on Everett street. On the contrary, he asserted, there was no unpleasant incidents in connection with the affair. He not belittle the affair and did not call Lieutenant Smith of the State Guard a name, although he does admit calling a certain Everett attorney a name for "butting in" on a conversation.

PAY INCREASE FOR WATERTOWN OFFICIALS

Watertown policemen and firemen will receive $1,600 a year, an increase of $100, by vote of an overflow town meeting which also raised the salaries of the town officials and laborers. The pay of city laborers was increased from $2.50 to $4 a day with two weeks' vacation with pay. An increase of $1,000 is to be divided among the city clerk, the town treasurer, the town auditor and the tax collector. Increases of $400 were voted Chief of Police J. F. Milmore, Fire Chief J. W. O'Hearn and Inspector of Wires Patrick J. Falvey. Superintendent of Streets Pierce P. Condon gets an increase of $300.

GOLD BRICK THIEF IS GIVEN YEAR IN JAIL

Attleboro, March 26.—There are still gold brick thieves. Louis T. Holbrook was fined $200 and sentenced to one year in the House of Correction for joining the ranks o this gentry. He was not, however, the old style crook who sells gold bricks to unsuspecting rural travelers. Louis stole a gold fabrick valued at $235 from the Robbins Company, where he had been a trusted employe, for eighteen years.

COMMERCE CHAMBERS ASKED TO AID JOBLESS

Washington, March 26.—Chambers of Commerce throughout the United States were called upon today by Lieutenant-Colonel Arthur Woods, an assistant to Secretary Baker, to lend their aid in finding employment for discharged soldiers. The chambers are asked to urge upon discharged soldiers the advisability of returning to their home towns and to furnish transportation to any who may be found ended in the large cities.

SITUATION IN EGYPT NOW REPORTED "QUIET"

'EMBASSY' OF 'REDS' OPENED IN NEW YORK

To Spend $200,000,000 for Russian Needs as Soon as U. S. Gives the Word

By BEN MELLON.

New York, March 26.—A gold sign on the door, bright red carpets on the floor, a pleasing but rather authoritative girl with a pronounced English name who wears what might be either a Russian blouse or a smock, her hair bobbed Greenwich Village style and who addresses half a dozen or more seemingly busy, studious men as "comrade," are the exterior indications that the government of Soviet Russia is now officially represented in the United States.

The offices are on the eighteenth floor of a modern building that faces Broadway, a short distance from City Hall Park. It is officially the Bureau of Information of Soviet Russia, S. Nuortova, director, but it is also for the present the official headquarters of L. A. Martens, newly appointed representative of the Lenine-Trotzky government to the United States.

"It is foolish to say that the government of Soviet Russia financed the Bolshevik movement in Hungary," Representative Martens said. "Money is not necessary to the establishment of Bolshevism. Bolshevism is nothing but Socialism put into practice and the only thing necessary to bring it about is conditions.

"No man in Russia is elected to office for a stated period. There are no regular election days. Every man and woman in Russia over eighteen years of age, who earns a living by mental or physical labor and who is not an employe of labor, can vote."

Lenine, he added, had been able to continue in power entirely because of his great strength as a man and his personal popularity.

Representative Martens says he wants to spend a large part of $200,000,000, just as soon as our government will permit, for things that Russia needs.

BEWARE OF UNIFORMED MEN SELLING MAGAZINES

Beware of the uniformed men who are selling magazines and other articles, ostensibly for the wounded soldiers!

This is being run down by Major D. J. Hickey, provost marshal, who with the co-operation of Superintendent of Police Michael J. Crowley, will attend to these offenders.

Complaints have reached army headquarters in this agency trust, of a number of persons who have been victimized.

Already the drag net is spread for the offenders and many in Boston as well as other cities in this State will soon be under the law.

AUSTRALIA PLANS NEW SET OF TARIFF LAWS

By Universal Service.

Melbourne, March 26.—A revision of tariff laws of Australia to protect home industries is planned. Acting Prime Minister Watt announced today.

"The great war has taught Australia many lessons," Mr. Watt said, "among them being that the commonwealth's geographical isolation and the long ocean haulages make it necessary for her to develop along more self-reliant lines."

ONE DEAD, TWO OVERCOME BY GASOLINE FUMES

John Sheehy, thirty - three, of Adams street, Roxbury, was killed by inhaling gasoline fumes while at work cleaning the inside of a tank car at the Jenney Manufacturing Company, No. 291 West First street, South Boston.

Two others who are critically ill at the City Hospital from inhaling the fumes are Michael J. Connors, twenty-eight, of No. 89 East Sixth street, Cambridge, and Patrick J. Riley of No. 294 I street, South Boston.

'Oh, Jack!' and Then the Stern Order of 'Eyes Front' Faded

"Eyes front!"

It was General O'Ryan's own order.

"This is a military affair, not a social gathering," he ruled.

Not a button was to be undone. French hats were not to be on the back of the head, and there positively was not to be any recognition of friends along the line of march.

Eyes front!

But—at Fiftieth street and Fifth avenue—some one called out "Oh, Jack!"

A rigid, erect figure on a superb horse turned his eyes left. He smiled. And, then to climax, he waved his hand.

It was General O'Ryan.—An incident of the big parade of the 27th Division in New York led by Major-General John F. O'Ryan.

DOUSED PUPIL IN WELLESLEY SEES LAWYER

Fahey, Given Cold Shower by Classmates, Says He Will Fight the Case

No arrests have been made as the result of the "water cure" inflicted upon Harry Fahey by classmates at Wellesley High School with the sanction of school officials, despite the assertion of Chief of Police H. M. Kingsbury today that he believes that Fahey has a perfect case against his assailants, who stripped him and thrust him under an ice cold shower.

Fahey told the town selectmen that he could not state positively whether A. J. McCartney, special officer of the school and teacher of history, aided in the punishment was being administered, but he declares he saw a man in the crowd wearing a suit identical with that worn by McCartney.

The ducking was the result of a disturbance that took place on the use of "clicker" which someone was using. Members of the student body received permission of the principal to take the punishment into their own hands rather than be obliged to stay after school for an hour. They seized upon Fahey as the offender and the cold shower followed.

Fahey has engaged counsel, and if he receives no satisfaction from the selectment will fight the case, it is said.

HIGH WIND PREVENTS DOCKING OF OLYMPIC

Halifax, N. S., March 26.—The big White Star liner Olympic, which arrived with troops and civilian passengers on board, docked, and civilians were brought ashore in tenders. The high wind made it dangerous to attempt to take the steamer into the inner harbor. After a fruitless attempt to dock her she was moved back to her anchorage in the stream. Another effort will be made today.

INVENTION PHOTOGRAPHS WIRELESS MESSAGES

Schnectady, N. Y., March 26.—Wireless messages are now read as well as listened to. An instrument invented by C. A. Hoxie of the General Electric laboratory photographs messages much more accurately than operators can decipher them by ear, according to scientists. With the new appliance a man totally deaf could be a wireless operator.

PARADE DENIED FOR GAS TANK PROTEST

Street Commission Turns Down 3,000 Who Wished to March to State House

Three thousand men and women, who wished to parade today to protest conditions in Boston which made the molasses tank tragedy in Commercial street last January possible, were refused a parade permit by the Street Commissioners.

The petitioners wanted to march through the streets with the State House as their objective, where they were to speak in favor of a proposed bill which would put limitations on the storing of illuminating gas within city limits.

Denied the right to parade, the petitioners became confused, and broke up into small groups, few of which reached the hearing room, in which the legislative committee on lighting was investigating both sides of the case.

The Street Commissioners denied the parade permit, as it was felt that such a procession would put bad sentiment against such conditions as the petitioners wanted abolished.

At the State House, however, attaches did not know until almost noon that the proposed parade had been forbidden. Extra police were on duty, and the committee on lighting moved its effects over into the big auditorium, and made arrangements for a hearing which was to be almost a mass meeting.

When it became known that the parade had been declared off, the hearing was again ordered back to the small committee room.

The parade permit was asked by advocates of a bill fathered by Vincent Brogna, and they were in some cases relatives of victims of the molasses tank disaster of two months ago.

OFFICERS TO ESTABLISH NAVAL CAMP FOR BOYS

Portsmouth, N. H., March 26.—Major W. H. Parker, commanding the Marine Barracks at the Navy Yard here, will start this Summer a military and naval camp for boys at Belle Isle, just outside of this city. His entire corps of instructors will be made of marine officers who will soon be placed upon the inactive list. Prominent army and navy officers are backing the plan.

BESSIE ABOTT, SINGER, LEFT ESTATE OF $152,000

New York, March 26.—Bessie Abott, noted singer, who died on February 9 of this year, left an estate valued at $152,000, Miss Abott died intestate and her sister, in applying for letters of administration, estimated the personal estate at $65,000 and the real estate at $87,000.

Miss Abott was the widow of T. Waldo Story.

NEWBURY QUIZZED ON $100 DINNER FOR RUTH SHEPLEY, ACTRESS

"PAULINE" INCIDENT DESCRIBED BY DIVORCE CASE WITNESS

Fall of 1917, sent for a photographer and had her pictures taken in bed.

These incidents were cited by Thompson Newbury to show the "unwarranted extravagance" to which Mrs. Newbury subjected him.

Newbury resumed the stand at the opening of the session, and Attorney Thurston went on with his cross-examination.

Q.—Regarding that $85 birthday dinner your wife gave, do you consider it more extravagant than for you to give a $100 dinner about the same time? A.—I recall no such dinner. I would consider it extravagant for each of two people.

Q.—Do you know Ruth Shepley? A.—I do.

Q.—Do you remember giving a dinner on the roof of the New Amsterdam Theatre at about that time. A.—I recall a dinner, but I don't know how near it was to the birthday dinner.

Q.—How many times do you recall being present in New York at which Miss Shepley was present? A.—I recall only one.

Q.—Who was present? A.—A Mr. and Mrs. Sampson, Miss Shepley and Mrs. Newbury and myself, that is all.

Q.—And did you pay $10 admission each for five people to the New Amsterdam roof? A.—I never paid any such price.

Q.—Do you recall whether this dinner was given at a place where tickets of admission were required? A.—I do not.

Q.—Where was the $85 dinner you spoke of given? A.—At the Hotel Woodcock, in Boston.

Q.—And you had no objection to your wife giving a dinner then? A.—My wife went right ahead about it.

Q.—Where were the guests at that dinner. A.—I cannot recall the list.

DETAILS OF AUTO TRIP.

The witness then gave details of the much discussed automobile trip that he took early in September, 1917, after he had definitely made up his mind to leave Mrs. Newbury. The trip covered Bretton Woods, New York, Hotel Edward on the North Shore, and Hotel Bancroft, Worcester. He stayed not more than five days in any one hotel.

Q.—When you were in New York, where did you stop? A.—At Hotel Plaza.

Q.—From the time you left your wife until you sent her the letter on November 17, to what extent did you change your expenditures or mode of living? A.—My expenditures were governed entirely by my health at that time.

ASSOCIATES QUITE PROPER.

Q.—Did your physician advise your staying in New York at the Plaza for eight days? A.—I didn't consider it necessary to ask his opinion about it.

Q.—You spoke of your friendship with Randall Dean. How many days before you went over to the sanitarium did your mother, in Mrs. Newbury's presence, ask you not to go around with Randall Dean? A.—It was never a subject of conversation with my mother.

Q.—Your wife never objected to your friendship with Fred Rooks? A.—On the contrary, Mrs. Newbury was constantly inviting him to be one of the party. Mr. Rooks accompanied us to house parties on the North Shore because she wanted him with us.

Q.—Name some of the parties you visited? A.—The Hoyts had never met him until we introduced him to them.

Q.—Is it a fact that Randall Dean and Fred Rooks were proper people for you to go around with? A.—I never thought otherwise at the time. Mr. Rooks visited us frequently at our house. Mr. Dean was not such a frequent visitor.

Mr. Newbury said that his wife had never made any objection to his friendship with either one of these men.

He denied that he had ever had any trouble with Mrs. Newbury in the presence of Rooks, or had ever slammed the door in her face.

Attorney Knowlton, in redirect examination, asked the witness to tell of the "Pauline" incident. He said: "Mr. Lovell and I went up to the Wamsutta Inn for something to eat. Mrs. Newbury was at the skating rink.

"When we went in there were six people at a table, three men and three girls, none of whom I had ever seen. I went out and when I came back Mr. Lovell was talking to two of the girls. I joined him, and we talked for two or three minutes. In the conversation, something was said about a telephone number, and I wrote it down in full. I never knew her last name and I never saw her again.

HAD TO BORROW $12,000.

Witness said that this was the Saturday night before his eye trouble began, in February, 1917.

Q.—Up to the time you went away, how badly in debt were you? A.—Several thousands of dollars. I was obliged to borrow $12,000 on life insurance policies.

Q.—Where did you spend Thanksgiving Day in 1917? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Did you spend it with Miss Evelyn Willis at No. 15 Gramercy Park, New York. A.—I don't recall.

Witness admitted that he did know a young woman who lived at the Marlborough-Blenheim, Atlantic City, and Club, in New York; that he had been in her company in various hotels and restaurants in New York. He said he had lunched with her at the Vanderbilt Hotel in New York, but was unable to recall whether he saw her on Thanksgiving Day in 1917.

Q.—Then it is true that within six weeks of the time you wrote you were living at the Biltmore Hotel and lunching at the Vanderbilt Hotel? A.—I was; I was working and receiving my salary again.

Mr. Newbury left the stand just before 11 o'clock.

Attorney Thurston here asked the court for time for conference with the two medical experts who were to be called as next witnesses. Conference followed conference, first with the medical experts, then with Mabel Gould Stickney Newbury, who waited in an adjoining room, and finally with Judge Quinn himself, in his chamber.

WOMEN OUT IN FORCE.

The audience became restive, and the women who had brought their knitting worked furiously. The courtroom was crowded this second day, many women being present. Many of them were Taunton friends of the Newbury family, while others were Fall River matrons who had postponed their bridge clubs and their social affairs for the more novel excitement of the trial.

Mrs. Newbury's companion was with her during the short time that she remained in court, and the rest of the time she spent in the retiring room.

Mother Dies in Fire in Vain Effort to Save Babies

By International News Service.

New York, March 26.—Mrs. Louise Mercier was burned to death today when she rushed into her flame-swept home in Richmond Hill, in an effort to save her three children, two of whom also perished in the fire.

Mrs. Mercier hurried to the street when aroused by the cry of "Fire!" Upon the sidewalk she learned that none of her children had followed her. She dashed into the house and was badly burned and forced to return to the street.

As soon as she had recovered sufficiently she rushed into the flames again and never returned. Her daughters aged six and three also were burned to death.

Her husband and another daughter are at the point of death in St. Mary's Hospital.

NEWTON PREPARING FOR WELCOME TO THE 26TH

Newton is preparing to welcome home the heroes of the 26th Division by the appointment of a committee of which Henry I. Harriman, president of the Newton Board of Aldermen and of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, is head. All the aldermen are members of this committee and will be chairmen of the committees of their respective wards. The city has agreed to pay the major part of the expense of two dinners arranged in honor of the home-coming heroes. A military ball at the West Newton armory and a celebration at Norumbega Park are planned.

DOWN-AND-OUT PRINCES TAKE LIFE EASY

Berlin Hotels Overrun by Dignitaries Who Have Been Jacked Out of Jobs

By ALFRED G. ANDERSEN.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, March 26.—A short, slender young fellow about twenty-four, with handsome features and dressed in a light suit of fashionable cut, ambled into the news stand at the Hotel Adlon and proceeded to examine Fraulein Erna's stock of French novels.

There was a certain air of jaunty ease and swaggering carelessness about that young fellow; something peculiarly theatrical. Any crowd of Broadway cafe habitues would have designated him a "sport." I happened to be at the news stand purchasing a batch of evening papers.

"Why the deuce don't you get some of Paul de Kock's novels?" demanded the youth, addressing Fraulein Erna.

"Run along and bother somebody else," replied that young lady, whose heartless disposition already has caused one French officer to move from the Adlon.

"Here's Three Weeks,' I suggested. "Too tame," growled the youth, disappearing into the lobby with half a dozen volumes given him by Erna with the privilege of returning those he didn't want.

"That was Henry XXXII., former Prince of Reuss," said Erna.

Henry XXXII. of Reuss was the last of Germany's 35 rulers to abdicate.

Half an hour later I was talking to the hotel manager in the lobby when another young man, in fur coat and derby hat, entered the elevator. He was the Prince of Schaumberg-Lippe.

A few abdicated princes may be found at every good hotel in Berlin.

MILL WORKERS MAY DEMAND 44 HOUR WEEK

Amalgamated Workers Promise to Back Up New Demands, If Made

Lawrence, March 26.—In view of the fact that there is a strong feeling for a forty-four-hour week among the textile strikers, a demand for such at fifty-four hours' pay may be made immediately, it was learned today.

A. J. Rubenstein said the Amalgamated Clothing Workers would back up the strikers in their demands, as the forty-four-hour week is the standard working week of the Amalgamated.

Twenty-two alleged rioters were tried today for their part in disorders on March 18. Two were fined twenty-five dollars each.

"Al" Bannwart, who proposed a march of 20,000 strikers on Boston, made his appearance again and went to the office of the Essex County Clerk of Courts and asked Clerk Archie N. Frost if he could accommodate 10,000 applications for naturalization papers. He was told to send them in. Bannwart plans to send all the unnaturalized strikers to the office of the clerk this week for first citizenship papers.

Mrs. Glendower Evans, wealthy Brookline woman whose sympathies are with the striking operatives, says she will have to leave Lawrence for a few days to take up some important work in New York. She states she will come back to this city immediately, however. She expects to be on the picket line today.

Thomas G. Connolly, attorney and legal advisor to the strikers' committee, was deposed as such at a meeting of that body and George B. Rower, Jr., and J. Bearak, both of Boston, attorneys for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, were given charge of the legal affairs of the strikers.

'Boudoir Bolsheviki,' Lawrence Judge Calls Rioters

Lawrence, March 26.—Enter a new type—the "Boudoir Bolsheviki." Habitat, this city.

So says Judge Jeremiah J. Mahoney, who held Louis Frsina of Boston, editor of the Revolutionary Age, for the grand jury in connection with strike riots here.

Hand in hand with the "Boudoir Bolsheviki" go the "light-headed neurotics." Both types are "persons who should be subjects for psychopathic hospitals and not for the courts of justice."

Beware the "Boudoir Bolshevik!"

"Lawrence is suffering, among other things, from an influx of long-haired ministers who were pacifists during the war and are 'against' about everything that ordinary mortals are in favor of," Judge Mahoney also said in sentencing alleged rioters.

Three of the strike leaders are Rev. A. J. Muste, Rev. H. L. Rotwel and Rev. Cedric Long of Boston.

BREWERS OF BOSTON MAY DEFY STATE LAW

If the Federal authorities decide that beer 3½ per cent. alcohol is not intoxicating in the meaning of the statute, Boston brewers will make beer of that strength, according to Howard Gray, president of the Boston Brewers' Board of Trade, regardless of the State law forbidding the manufacture of beer more than one per cent. alcohol. The State law referred to is now on the statute books for no-license towns, and under national prohibition would apply to the entire Commonwealth.

'LINIMENT COCKTAILS' LEADS TO A DIVORCE

Providence, March 26.—Liniment, sugar and hot water—recipe for both a beverage and a divorce. Mrs. Carolina Peterson was granted a decree by Judge Barrows in the Superior Court here when she testified that Charles Peterson was addicted to liniment cocktails. He took them, she said, when he could not get whiskey.

HALF PRICE ICE STATIONS TO REOPEN

Dealers Make Announcement Following Conference With Mayor Peters

Ice stations where Boston's poor may buy ice at half the regular prices, will be established again this season, it was announced today by H. G. Voter, vice-president of the Massachusetts Ice Dealers' Association.

The announcement of the reopening of the stations established last year by the food administration followed a series of conferences with Mayor Peters in this regard.

"The shortage of ice is acute," said Vice-President Voter, "and the ice dealers feel that some measures should be taken to protect those in the city who are unable to pay the regular price. The price for Boston has not been settled.

"Last year thousands secured their ice from the stations at half the regular price. The price at the stations at that time was 25 cents per 100 pounds. The increase of 5 cents this year will not even pay for the extra men necessary to cut the ice.

"The stations will be well supplied with ice despite the fact that double the price charged in the poor could be obtained from dealers in Connecticut and Rhode Island, and even New York for that matter."

Mayor Peters praised the attitude of the ice men and said he was glad of the chance to be able to co-operate in such a movement.

THREE AVIATORS BELIEVED LOST IN SEA

Trio Were on Way from Baltimore to New York in Endurance Test

Baltimore, Md., March 26.—Three airmen from the naval air station at Hampton Roads, Va., are believed to have been lost in the Chesapeake Bay Sunday, when their airplane met with difficulties in heavy weather.

A radiogram from the air base at Hampton Roads notified officials of the naval overseas transportation service here that the aviators, whose identity was not given, on their way to New York on an endurance flight, had been missing for three days and were probably in difficulties.

The captain of the tug E. P. Williams, arriving in port, reported that a disabled plane had been sighted about eight miles off York Spit, near the York River, Monday afternoon.

Owing to the heavy weather he was unable to approach the plane, but it looked empty.

The plane with a pilot and two mechanicians left the naval base Sunday afternoon. It was to have arrived here that day, but was never reported passing Baltimore.

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.

Millions of folks baths internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, then quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, biliousness, nasty breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right, are urged to obtain, a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.—Advertisement.

Repeat Advice About Spring Blood Purifier

Proves Many Serious Ailments Due to Poisons in System.

Says Nothing Better Than Sulphur, Cream of Tartar and Herb Extracts in Tablet Called "Sulpherb Tablets"

The wisdom of ages placed in a little sugar coated tablet—Sulpherb Tablets! Remember grandma's remedy—Sulphur and cream of tartar mixed in molasses—it was a nauseous dose, but it saved thands of lives by purifying the blood in the Spring. Thousands avoided rheumatism and serious fevers by taking it. Now you can get the benefits by taking a little tablet regularly containing the blood purifying, system regulating medicines that grandma relied on.

Constipation, inactive kidneys are overcome and catarrh, neuralgia, rheumatic pain and many other "poison symptoms" vanish after a course of Sulpherb Tablets. The best medicine for spring lethargy and thick, sluggish blood. Every package is guaranteed to satisfy or money back. 50c in sealed tubes of druggists everywhere. PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the harmlessly effective result.

Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and 30c per box. All druggists.

ADDED $3 TAX TO LEAVE RATE UNCHANGED

Mayor in Statement Tells Outlook if Legislature Grants Appeal

If the Legislature grants Mayor Peters' appeal for a $3 tax limit increase Boston's tax rate for the ensuing fiscal year will not be much more than it has been during the past year.—$21.20.

Mayor Peters issued a statement today to this effect, hoping to correct a widespread fear that the tax rate might be jumped to $25.

In his statement the Mayor says: "The connection with the hearings by the committee of the Legislature on the bills providing for the increase of $3 in the tax limit, it has been brought very forcibly to my attention a surprisingly large number of times that many people believe that the $3 increase requested means that the tax rat will be three dollars higher than it was last year.

"This, of course, is not so, nor is there any foundation in fact for any such belief.

INCREASE FOR YEAR ONLY.

"The increase of three dollars which the legislature allowed the city of Boston last year, for what is called 'municipal purposes,' was given only for that year. Therefore, as the increase in the tax limit was good only for last year, the tax limit this year naturally reverts to the limit of $6.52 for municipal purposes fixed by law, and which was the basis of the tax levy for municipal purposes in 1917 and a number of years previous.

"In order that persons not familiar with municipal finance may have a clearer understanding of my statement, I shall set down here a few statements showing how the tax rate is compiled each year. The tax rate of the city is composed of the following items: State tax, county tax, school expenses, city debt requirements and fuel supply, expenses for other city departments.

"In 1918, for instance, the amounts set beside each item were as follows: State tax, $2.89; county tax, $1.36; schools, $4.48; city debt requirements and fuel supplies, $2.96; other municipal purposes, $3.41; total, $21.20.

"This is the manner in which the tax rate of the city is arrived at.

"Of the last item a certain portion must be applied to certain municipal requirements over which the Mayor has no control, such as the debt requirements and other expenses, with the result that there is annually only $6.52 per thousand dollars of valuation which is available to be expended under the direction of the Mayor for general municipal purposes and the law limits these expenditures to this amount.

BEYOND MAYOR'S CONTROL.

"As the Mayor has no control over the amount of the State tax, which is the first item shown above, nor over the county tax, which is the second item, nor of the school expense, which constitute the third item, nor of the fourth item, it will readily be seen that his only control is over the expenditures which must come from the $6.52 allowed by law. That amount is all that is allowed now, inasmuch as the law which permitted an increase of $3 last year ceases to exist after 1918.

"What is proposed this year is simply to secure the Legislature's consent to an increase of $3 over the $6.52 on each $1,000 of valuation which has been the limit for the city for some years until last year. There is, therefore, no reason to suppose that the tax rate this year will be materially different from that of last year."

453 DEATHS IN U. S. ARMY; PNEUMONIA CAUSES 297

Washington, March 26.—The smallest number of deaths from disease since last August was reported by the War Department today for the American expeditionary forces for the week ending March 6. Of the 453 deaths from all causes, 297 were of pneumonia. The number of sick and injured overseas has been reduced 86 per cent, 80,837 having been returned to the United States since the signing of the armistice. The health of troops in the United States for the week ending March 14 continues to show an improvement, it was stated. The death rate for the week was 8.2, per thousand, as compared with 11.4 for the preceding week.

MARTIAL LAW IS PROCLAIMED IN SPAIN

Washington, March 26.—Meagre dispatches received by the State Department today tell of a revolutionary movement in Spain.

Officials of the department were unable to say whether it is part of the Bolshevist uprising now sweeping Europe, or whether it partakes more of the character of "syndicalism," or the radical movement of labor against capital.

The centre of the disturbance, according to the State Department advices, is in Barcelona, where martial law has been declared as the result of a general strike.

DOUGHBOYS TOO KIND, SAYS FITCHBURG HERO

Fitchburg, March 26.—Ralph J. Caron, who has arrived home with the 101st Trench Mortar Battery, says the only trouble was that the doughboys were too tender-hearted. "Every Hun that was hollering Kamerad was taken care of quickly," he said. "We did give them a show, but they played dirty and they paid a very high percentage for the trick."

Says Beautiful Eyes Are French Girls' Best Asset

"How anyone can compare the poorest American specimen of femininity with the best in France is beyond my comprehension."

This is the answer of an American soldier in France to hints by other soldiers that Yankee girls had better mind their laurels. The writer, who read the story at Nantes, France, in the American, is Master Engineer David Mueller, 824 Co. Transportation Corps. These are his strictures on French "mesdemoiselles."

"They are mentally weak. They are undersized, scrawny and physically weak. They have large eyes that are really beautiful, and they certainly can use them to perfection. This I class as a doubtful compliment.

"Another thing," pursues this critic, "they have no pride. Imagine one of our girls almost begging a man to marry her. In fact, the least little slip on the doughboy's part is taken as a proposal, and then the meshes of her skilfully made net."

She can't cook, either, according to this loyal doughboy. "About all the French girls know is the frying pan," he writes. "They then are considered graduates."

Engineer Mueller is not the only soldier who subscribes to these sentiments. His letter to the American is signed also by Sergeant John W. Goggin, and Privates Walter J. Deneeke, Richard L. Hickey, Thomas H. Slater and R. A. Ahearn.

KIDNAPED BOY RECOVERED BY MOTHER

Mrs. Fankhausen of Woonsocket 'Steals' Boy From Husband's Home in New Jersey

Mrs. Jennie Fankhausen of No. 21 Summer street, Woonsocket, R. I., has recovered her six-year-old boy, Norman, who was kidnaped by her husband, Robert West Fankhausen, at Woonsocket on March 15 and was taken to the father's farm at Eatontown, N. J.

The mother is speeding back to Woonsocket with the boy, accompanied by her sister, Miss Rosamond Hampton of Woonsocket.

While the father was at a New Jersey county court, in answer to a convenient summons from county authorities, the mother and her sister went to the father's farmhouse and took the boy away.

Mr. Fankhausen took Norman away from Woonsocket in a closed automobile owned and driven by his friend, Lester W. Brock of No. 6 Howe street, Auburndale. The father boarded a train at Providence for New York. When he arrived at Eatontown he wired back to the mother that he had the boy at his farm.

Friends of Mrs. Fankhausen reported this to the Woonsocket police. Chairman W. H. Bachelor of the Woonsocket Police Commission and Chief Fred E. Coe sent Captain Fred Gilchrist and Chief Inspector Joseph Jalbert to Mrs. Fankhausen. The first of this week Mrs. Fankhausen and her sister went to New Jersey. Gilchrist and Jalbert also journeyed over there.

The story was told to a country police official of New Jersey. By interesting coincidence a court summons was issued for Mr. Fankhausen. It does not appear that this summons related at all to the matter of the kidnaped boy, nor that Mr. Fankhausen even knew that his wife was in that vicinity.

At any rate, the father went away to court yesterday morning. It also appears that he was absent long enough to insure the success of any plans the mother might have to regain possession of Norman.

Mrs. Fankhausen, her sister and the two Woonsocket police officers took an auto ride yesterday morning. The car was stopped near the Fankhausen farm, according to report received at Woonsocket today. The mother and sister left the car and soon returned with the boy. The party then drove rapidly away from there.

"Boy, on way home with mother." This wire was sent from somewhere near New York, city. It is understood that the mother, sister and boy will return to Woonsocket by a roundabout way.

PATIENT ACCUSED OF ASSAULT ON DOCTOR

Dr. C. Benjamin Fuller, director of the Waltham Welfare department, has sworn out a warrant for the arrest of William Stiner, of Newton street, Waltham, charging that the latter assaulted him when he called to give him treatment. Stiner disappeared soon after the doctor's visit.

Dr. Fuller told the police he had reproached Stiner for drinking and refusing to support his family and that Stiner had jumped out of bed, seized him by the throat and choked him.

USES DRAWINGS AS 'FIRST AID' FRENCH

"Jim" O'Brien of the American Tells of Experiences in Store in France

"Jim" O'Brien of Newton, the former Boston American bulletin man, whose news bulletins, war maps and pictures regularly gathered crowds in front of the American's Summer street windows, finds his talent as a sketch artist handy for his present duties as a field secretary in France for the Knights of Columbus.

"Jim," who is more formally known as James J. O'Brien, draws pictures of supplies he wishes to buy when he can't think of the French words for them. His sketching talent is a typical "first-aid."

An interesting letter from "Jim" to one of his friends on the American includes the following paragraph:

"I had occasion to buy some things for the hut this morning. I secured everything I wanted by drawing pictures of locks, saucepans (actual size) and so on. The lady in the Bonmarche department store had to smile. You see, a slight knowledge of half-way art is an advantage in a foreign land."

"JIM" ABOUT HIS ART.

"Jim" is modest about his powers as a sketch artist, as those who have seen some of his spirited drawings and decorative window work will realize.

O'Brien is stationed at a small town in the French department of Loir-et-Cher, about forty-two miles from Orleans, the city forever associated with Joan of Arc. His letter reads in part:

"Am now installed in a new hut which will be officially opened next Thursday night (March 13). I have 'beaucoup' (plus the French) supplies for the boys.

"There are 7,000 men at the camp, divided among the Aviation, Construction and Motor Transport Construction Divisions, also one company of marines doing guard duty. There are 500 German prisoners here, who work in the shops and clean up camp under guard.

MINISTER BREAKS AIR RECORD.

"General Pershing was here and reviewed the troops. About a dozen aeroplanes flew overhead, some too close for real comfort. One gent, in a plane marked 'Hello, Joe!' flew about 100 feet above ground and at the rate of 100 miles an hour.

"On this field recently Lieutenant Maynard, a Congregational minister from South Carolina, broke the world's record by making 215 loops in the air in 67 minutes. (Previous record 200 loops in 66 minutes.) It was a great sight watching him turn a somersault every twelve seconds.

"I read that President Wilson was given a great reception in Boston, also that the 26th Division would arrive home next month. The 26th certainly did its bit at the front. I am sure it will receive an ovation."

TWO BAY STATE GIRLS ARE NOW LIEUTENANTS

Attleboro, March 26.—It is now "Lieutenant" Madeline Hill and "Lieutenant" Helen Paye. These young women, former clerks in the Ordnance Department at Washington, have won the rank and pay of second lieutenants in competitive examinations. Miss Hill is the niece of John W. Cody, Boston, and Miss Paye the daughter of Charles T. Paye of North Attleboro. They will be stationed at Fort Sill, Okla.

Petition to the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy to send Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Home with Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer st., Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War:
To the Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers, sailors and marines who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

OPEN FISH MART AT WORCESTER TOMORROW

Tons of Choice Varieties of Sea Food Rushed to Supply Big Trade

Fish at cost for Worcester.

Tomorrow a Boston American Fish Store to provide the public of Worcester with fish at six cents a pound will open at No. 190 Southbridge street.

Worcester residents are urged to attend the opening of this store. Here is an opportunity to cut the cost of living, and at the same time learn to make proper use of the great fisheries the people of all New England have so long failed to appreciate. Here is a chance to get even with the meat barons and other food profiteers by eating the great natural product of New England.

A wide variety of fine frozen fish, of which thousands and thousands of pounds have been sold in Boston, Lowell, Lawrence, Nashua and other cities and towns, will be placed on sale in Worcester tomorrow.

There will be the deservedly popular Boston bluefish, fine steak cod, toothsome finnan haddie, herring, mackerel, whiting and other varieties. They will be sold as the fish placed on sale in all the Boston American Fish Stores is being sold, at cost. Not one variety offered at this figure to attract trade but all varieties will be 6 cents the pound.

"During the past twenty-four hours thousands of pounds of fish were transported to the other Boston stores in preparation for the gigantic business of the stores. Regardless of difficulties the stores are constantly being supplied with plenty of fish to satisfy the great demands.

"For the first time in years many people are eating fish as often as three times a day. The establishment of the Boston American stores has swept away the old superstition that fish is only good on Fridays. Every day has become a fish day wherever Boston American stores have been founded.

Get the habit. Buy your tomorrow's dinner at the nearest Boston American store today! The more you buy the more you help yourself and your community!

SCIENCE OF AIR BIG FACTOR IN SEA FLIGHT

Dirigible Suggested As Ideal Craft for Venture; May Best Month

By HINSON STILES.
British Royal Air Force.

The intensive study now being devoted to aerial navigation, particularly as it relates to conditions over large water expanses, by the American naval pilots scheduled to take part shortly in the great race to cross the Atlantic in the air, is a good sign, for in the science of navigation by air, in my estimation, lies slightly more than half the chances of the venture becoming successful.

The strongest plane and the most endurable ship invented would be of no avail if the pilots became lost, made poor calculations, omitted the consideration of combatting new conditions, all possible through the fact that flying overland or within fifty miles of shore is wholly different than piloting a machine high in the heavens over a broad expanse of sea for nearly 2,000 miles.

Among all the speculation as to these prospective conditions nothing seems to have been told the public of the methods essential to a successful conclusion of the across-seas flight, culled from a careful study of meteorology and aerial navigation.

FAVORS DIRIGIBLE.

Before proceeding to the flight let us consider the type of craft to be used. I agree with your famous American flier, Capt. Edward Rickenbacker, that the rigid dirigible is the most ideal craft to use since it possesses the strongest element of safety, has comparatively fast speed and can carry a great supply of fuel.

While your army and navy fliers defend the airplane as the best agency for winning the first honors I believe that the best heavier-than-air craft yet invented would find almost overwhelming conditions to combat while on the great trip.

True, the rigid dirigible is slower but it would take a very heavy storm to force it down to the sea's surface, and therein lies the danger to the air or seaplane. Once forced to land through broken mechanism or beat down by a terrific storm, its chances for success would be small. It is hardly possible that it would be able to rise out of the sea again.

If "veering," "backing," misunderstated propeller terms, "gusts," "light winds bearing storms and air pockets indeed" by the superstitious Gulf Stream all combine to make the pilots lose their way, or add 500 or so miles to the flight, the heavier-than-air type of machine would find itself badly wrenched and heavily out of petrol, perhaps necessitating the dreaded landing in the ocean.

The same thing is, of course, just as likely to happen to the aviators on the rigid dirigible, but they have the advantage of permanent buoyancy and can cruise about until they have found their bearings or until the danger has passed.

Unlike navigating the sea the air pilot must consider many things that the mariner does not. Drift is one of them. Starting from a given point and knowing the velocity of the wind, the height at which he is to fly, the pilot can reach his destination by allowing for these influences on his flight.

Wind conditions on the flight across will be constantly changing and drift will be one of the greatest detriments to the trip. Meteorologists suggest that the Gulf Stream will be responsible for variable and treacherous winds. This body of water, of course, is due to the influence of the equatorial current and runs from the Straits of Florida up the Atlantic Ocean in a northeasterly direction toward Europe, the goal of your American pilots.

DRIFT IMPORTANT.

The wind is said to veer when an altitude increases its direction changes clockwise and to "back" when under the same condition it changes anti-clockwise. In the Western Hemisphere, however, the wind seldom backs. Therefore, encounters on the way across a new condition for the pilot will present itself, since backing, a condition new to many of the naval fliers, takes place in the air on the Eastern Hemisphere. Army fliers who were in France can readily attest to this.

Over land and under ordinary conditions the wind increases in density its ground velocity at any height over 2,000 feet. This might prove true as far as 100 miles off shore, but it is unknown what conditions must be met as to velocity at 500 miles and more out at sea. The best flying altitude will have to be determined by the pilots themselves when they reach this zone, and dangerous experimenting will undoubtedly be necessary before the height with the minimum of danger is found.

Propeller torque is the action of the propeller cutting the air, swinging the machine around slightly toward the left. This has to be counter-acted by "right rudder." Under foggy, windy conditions it is almost impossible to accurately gauge the amount of "rudder" necessary.

American pilots in the great race have an advantage in the heavy winds blowing on their "tail" from off the East coast of the United States, but this condition exists only for a short distance out, it is believed.

May, perhaps, is the most ideal month for the trip, although I believe both American and British pilots will have started before then. Storms are less frequent at this period.

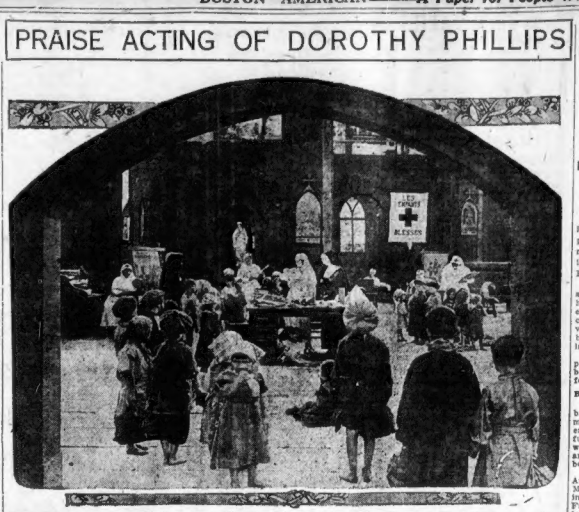
PRAISE ACTING OF DOROTHY PHILLIPS



One of the many impressive scenes in the big film production, "The Heart of Humanity," now being shown at the Tremont Temple.

The acid test of histrionism is versatility.

Critic cities have declared the acting of Dorothy Phillips as Nanette in Allen Holubar's production, "The Heart of Humanity," to be indicative of a masterful ability to contrast characters. This great feature is now being unrolled to unusually large audiences at Tremont Temple.

For Nanette, the innocent child of the northwoods, in the criterion of womankind, is the noblest representation of the screen. The type of a woman who has made the Red Cross the most potent factor in minimizing the curse of warfare.

And Miss Phillips' greatest role before Nanette was the dance hall creature in "Hell Morgan's Girl," a character drawing that displayed its utter vulgarity, the decadent womanhood and the easy virtue of the night-life person.

There is the contrast—on one hand the woman of the byways, of the dance halls and of the eye-fished invitation—on the other, the "new" woman purged of petty vanities—the woman of service, of Red Cross and of humanity. First there is the husk of womanhood in which but a spark of the divine stiff is left; and then the glorious flame of woman's heritage, burning assiduously for her offspring that the world may be a better place for newer generations.

Miss Phillips, therefore, has immortalized the contrast of the Barbary Coast and the battlefield as objectives for women's activities. She has put into expression the widely diverging maxims, "to gain" and "to give."

Thus it is that these film spectators whom Miss Phillips drew to her banner in her first pictorial "hit," "Hell Morgan's Girl," were also played as roles of degraded womanhood, will have an opportunity to view their favorite in apart symbolizing the highest attainments of the sex in a film tribute to the Red Cross.

GIANT ACTOR IS SHOT TO DEATH BY "WIFE"

Milwaukee, Wis., March 26.—During a quarrel, George Bell of New York, twenty-five years old, a negro, playing the role of Giant in the "Chu Chin Chow" company, was shot to death by his common law wife, Maceo Daly. Bell was seven feet eleven inches tall.

The woman told the police that Bell threatened to kill her. She got his revolver before he could reach it, she claims, and fired two shots at him. He died instantly.

GEN. EDWARDS TO SEE "THE HEART OF HUMANITY"

General Clarence R. Edwards, together with more than 100 other officers, will attend this evening's performance of "The Heart of Humanity," at the Tremont Temple, as the guests of the Gordon-Mayor Film Corporation.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Advertisement.

AL JOLSON COMING IN SHUBERTS' "SINBAD"

Al Jolson in "Sinbad," the Shuberts' New York Winter Garden show, will be at the Boston Opera House April 21, and his coming will signalize the launching of a new policy by the Shuberts, who will in future bring all their Winter Garden shows to Boston. The original cast of 100 people will be seen here. A. Toxen Worm, special representative of the Shuberts, was in Boston making arrangements for the presentation of the gorgeous "Sinbad" spectacle and for the other attractions which will follow it at the Opera House. The mail order sale will open Monday.

RED CROSS LEAGUE FOR RECONSTRUCTION WORK

London, March 26.—A Red Cross League of Nations will be organized at Cannes, France, on April 1 to utilize all the Red Cross war organizations for relief in civil life after peace is signed, said the Daily Express today.

CLAIM ACCUSED SOLDIER IS MENTALLY AFFLICTED

Milford, March 26.—Private William H. Wright of Lowell, arrested and arraigned in Milford District Court on a charge of false oaths, had his case continued for disposition until Thursday by Judge Clifford A. Cook. Authorities say members of his family declare he is not mentally right. He told Miss Alice M. Jackman, his fiancee, that he had never wed, that he had been in service in France and wounded there, all falsehoods, according to the evidence in court.

STARS OF STAGE PLAY AT ELKS' BENEFIT

Best of Theatrical Bills on City's Stage Offered at Colonial

A bit of that delightful informality characterizing theatrical benefits pleased a packed house at the Colonial when the theatrical folk playing in Boston turned out to help the Elks' Benefit Theatricals.

Hitches in curtain risings gave an audience always eager for peeks behind the stage, glimpses of hurriedly ensembled settings, slight mixups in curtain cues by call boys and impromptu music—just the touch that brought the players and audience into delightful intimacy.

The performance, as could be expected, was a rare chance to see the best of the theatrical bills being offered on the city stages.

BILLY VAN ACTS AS MASTER.

No Elks Benefit would be really brotherly without Billy B. Van as master of ceremonies. This popular entertainer acted as announcer and furnished side remarks as entre acts which kept the audience in good humor and the players ready to give of the best that was in them.

Among the dramatic acts George Arliss & Co. in the third act of "The Medium;" Mary Nash and company in an act of "The Big Chance" and Fred Stone, star of the "Jack o' Lantern" Company, Leonora Novasio and Harry Delf of "The Rainbow Girl" company, furnished the headliners.

William J. Kelly of "The Big Chance" company doubled up with stories and readings. Other entertainers on the excellent bill were Courtenay Foote of the "Adam and Eva" company, the Six Brown Brothers, who have made the saxophone popular; Robert Ober of the "She Walked in Her Sleep" company; Ben Hendricks; Chester Byers in lariat stunts; Lamonte Sisters from Keith's; Etta Mildred Healitt in an interpretative dance; Brechell and Gallio; Smith and Bonnell from Keith's; Elsie White in chic songs from Lowe's Orpheum; Louise Badaracco, soprano soloist; Gillen and Mulcahy from the Boston Theaters; Jovedahh from the Boston; Van and Schenck from Keith's; Frank Munroe of the "Nothing But Lies" company; the Gardner Trio of the "Take It from Me" company; Harry Breen, the rapid-fire song writer, and Eddie Mahoney, the pianist, who played his new march, "Chateau Thierry," assisted by the Colonial Theatre Orchestra.

A 100% LIFE FOR YOU!

Better Health. Greater Efficiency. A Bigger Success.

We All Strive For It. Not All Of Us Get It. You May Have All Three In Good Measure If You Go About It Right.

Dual Personality? No, Nothing Like That. His Liver Balks!

If you knew how much your liver has to do with your memory, mental powers, disposition, complexion, appetite, sleep, health, happiness and what-not—you would resolve to know more about it.

Your liver is the champion chemist of the world. It will take any of a couple of dozen different kinds of poisons, "split" them, recombine and change them into fat, or sugar, burn them in the muscles as vigor-fuel—and what's left make into harmless bile.

Under the title, "Life, Love and the Liver" in the April PHYSICAL CULTURE Magazine out to-day, Edwin F. Bowers, M. D., tells you many eye-opening facts about your liver that you will never forget—and profit by as long as you live. Read it by all means.

From a Cripple in Harness to an Active Fighting Man!

Ole Hanson, Seattle's famous fighting Mayor, was paralyzed and one of his children killed in a railroad wreck some years ago in Texas. He was so badly maimed that the doctors said he could not live. But he laughed at them and LIVED. Then they said he would never be able to walk again. Once more he proved their mistake by walking half way across the continent.

A little ingenuity and pluck is all he possessed when he started out to repair his shattered body. By dint of perseverance he slowly regained the use of his limbs. Walter E. Burton tells how Ole Hanson achieved this miracle of self-cure. Read it in the April PHYSICAL CULTURE Magazine, out to-day. You will find it very interesting.

Completely Rested in the Space of Only One Second!

Does it sound ridiculous to advise a man or woman to take a one-second nap at midday to rest oneself? Well, it's not.

The great value of a nap is not in the length of time you sleep, but in the complete relaxation of body and mind which precedes your losing consciousness.

In the April number of PHYSICAL CULTURE Magazine out to-day, you will find an intensely interesting article, "Bigger Business from Better Sleep," by O. J. Hamilton and Alan Lesley that will tell you a few mighty valuable things about how to keep fit. Among other things, it shows how to nap for one second and no longer and explains the tonic effect it has on one the rest of the day.

PHYSICAL CULTURE

The Personal Problem Magazine for Thinking People

This is an age of the artificial. People breathe mostly artificial air, live in mostly artificial light, eat a lot of artificial ("predigested") food and drink artificial beverages. As far away as we are from the monkey in our civilization, we are almost as far away from our original make-up which Nature gave us. There is not the natural sweetness and healthiness of our flesh, blood and marrow that there should be. Many humans are soured through and through. Think that over and see if you don't think that most people you know are in need of undergoing a body-sweetening process—including yourself.

PHYSICAL CULTURE Magazine is Knowledge, Experience and Sense applied to the Practical Business of your own Body and Brain in Health and In Sickness and BY YOUR OWN SELF. It is not a sensational magazine—but a Health, Efficiency and Success-Building magazine. Any man or women who will scrupulously follow its teachings may expect to experience a fine old age. The April issue, out to-day (20c.) is filled with articles that will interest you hugely and benefit you materially. If you read nothing more than the one article, "Life, Love and the Liver," you will have gained knowledge of life-long and priceless value to you. There are 81 articles in all. REVEALS QUICK GROWTH OF BAY STATE FISH CO.

E. Raymond Kearney, Stock Salesman for Dyer & Co., Testifies at Trial

How the Bay State Company grew like a veritable "Jack and the Beanstalk" in three years was the revelation of the trial of fish dealers in the Superior Court before Judge Sanderson today.

From a beginning in 1913 with only two steam trawlers the company, according to a stock promotion circular as introduced by Assistant District Attorney Webber, flourished and in 1918 it owned thirteen trawlers, planned the building of two more, controlled stores on the fish pier and as early as in 1915 handled 22 per cent. of the 75,000,000 pounds of fish landed in Boston.

This remarkable evidence was brought out during the examination of E. Raymond Kearney, a stock salesman of F. M. Dyer & Co. After explaining his methods of selling stock and defying he looked up stock sales at his office after yesterday's session, Kearney was examined as to his knowledge of the affairs of the Bay State Fish Company.

BAD CERTIFIED ACCOUNTS.

Kearney admitted knowledge of circulars and letters relative to the business of the Bay State Company, but said he could not describe them. He had carried, however, certified accounts of the company, audited by the Price, Waterhouse Company.

Webber asked if Kearney knew of a paper called the Bay State Fisherman. The salesman said that he had seen copies lying in baskets at his offices. He told of trips to the New York offices of his company, but Webber's inquiry as to the nature of the business of the trips was ruled out.

Webber read a stock promotion circular dated June 1, 1916, relative to the taking over of the Bay State Company of Massachusetts by the Bay State Company. It was this circular that revealed the amazing growth of the company.

PAID GREAT DIVIDENDS.

Further, the circular went on to state that the company was paying a dividend four times larger than requirements, and was steadily growing. Of particular significance was an inscription in italics below the signature of F. Monroe Dyer on the circular which read as follows:

"We recommend the purchase of this stock as a safe investment."

Objection was raised to introduction of the circular as evidence because of pencil marks on it. Judge Sanderson ruled, however, that the pencil marks should be erased and the circular re-submitted for the satisfaction of counsel for the defence.

The stock, it was shown, sold between $35 and $70 a share in 1918 and was not put on the market, but disposed of direct to customers through salesmen.

SOLDIER BONUS INDORSED IN TAUNTON

Taunton, March 26.—The Municipal Council unanimously adopted a resolution for granting six months' pay to soldiers, sailors and marines. The resolution, presented by Councilman Charles Cain, Jr., puts the Taunton city fathers on record as favoring the six months' pay bonus that the American is making a country-wide fight to obtain.

Councilman Cain is a member of the staff of Governor Coolidge, a lieutenant in the State Guard, editor of an Attleboro newspaper and for several years has been chairman of the board of trustees of the Taunton State Hospital.

The city council showed further willingness to help service men by sending a resolution to the local park commission in opposition to removal of the so-called "Victory Cottage" from the Common, as the cottage is being used as a headquarters for returned service men. An order was passed also to prepare an amendment to the ordinance removing the park commission's authority over the cottage. The park board recently voted to remove it.

Seeking war bonuses is nothing new in Taunton. On the very soil now held sacred as historic ground, a band of men who had been promised a bonus for war service had a battle with militia under General David Cobb and while they lost to superior forces, they later received the bonus.

27TH OFF TO UPTON FOR DEMOBILIZATION

New York, March 26.—Tired but happy after the strenuous forty-eight-hour welcome, the fighters of the 27th New York division entrained today for Camp Upton, where they will be demobilized before the end of this month.

Twenty-three trains were detailed to carry the soldiers to their destination and immense crowds gathered on Long Island City, where they entrained, to cheer them.

The preliminaries incident to demobilization will begin at Camp Upton tomorrow, when physical examinations will be started by medical corps officers.

CAMBRIDGE ROBBERS WIN ON SECOND TRIP

When the Fopiano fruit store in Cambridge was robbed last Monday night the thieves took away a slip of paper bearing the safe combination, after they had secured only a few dollars in cash. They returned last night with the combination and had better luck, for the safe contains $175, which they confiscated. Patrolman Callahan discovered the break. The store is at No. 127 Cambridge street.

BURNS PROVE FATAL TO DANVERS WOMAN

Historic Flag for State Leading in Victory Loan

By International News Service.

Washington, March 26.—The American flag that floated over the Capitol dome during some of the most momentous occasions in the history of the country is to be awarded to the State oversubscribing by the largest percentage its quota in the Victory Loan, Secretary of the Treasury Glass announced this afternoon.

It is the flag that waved over the seat of government during the second inauguration of President Wilson and while he was delivering his war address to Congress. Later it was displayed while Congress was passing the resolution by which America entered the world war and again it was raised when news of the signing of the armistice was received.

ASK PLAYGROUND FOR SOUTH END CHILDREN

City Clerk Donovan Leads Petitioners of Castle and Dover Street Section

City Clerk James Donovan, himself a life-long South End resident, led a score of social workers and others who came to ask Mayor Peters today to sanction a recent City Council loan order, providing for $125,000 for a children's playground in the congested tenement area bordered by Castle, Washington, Dover and Tremont streets.

City Councillor John A. Donoghue, who fathered the order, told the Mayor the area has a population of 6,000, and one-third of this number are children of school distant, affords the nearest playground, he said. But to get to it the children must encounter dangers in crossing busy Washington street. Preston B. Clark and John D. Adams of the Lincoln House settlement in Emerald street told of the pressing need of a breathing spot for mothers of the section and their babes, and how the children would welcome sand gardens and gymnasium apparatus.

Other speakers were Councillor Edward F. McLaughlin, John J. Attridge and half a dozen other residents in the district. The Mayor promised he would give serious consideration to the order.

ACCUSED OF ROBBING AGED WATERTOWN MAN

Frank O. Crossman, twenty-two, of Somerville, a former Watertown resident, was arrested by the Watertown police charged with robbery and assault upon Peter McQuade, a man of sixty, in Cotter's stable, Watertown. McQuade said they had been out for a good time together and returning stopped at Cotter's stable where Crossman knocked him down and robbed him of $27. When arraigned in court today Crossman pleaded not guilty and was held in $5,000 bail for continued hearing next Thursday.

SLAYER COMMITTED TO DANVERS ASYLUM

Stephen Szczepanek, forty-five, of Newburyport, who was convicted last Fall of having slain a woman with an axe, was today committed to the Danvers Asylum for the Insane for observation. Szczepanek was committed by Judge Wait in the Superior Court in Salem. He had been in the Salem jail since his conviction, and it was reported that he suffered from mental disturbances. Dr. Frank Atwood and Dr. William McDermott of Salem both testified as to the guilty man's mental condition.

BRITISH MINERS WILL VOTE ON SANKEY REPORT

London, March 26.—Leaders of the coal miners have decided to recommend acceptance of the report of the government commission headed by Justice Sankey. A ballot will be taken upon the report which recommended a number of reforms in working conditions. The miners have adopted a resolution calling upon Great Britain and allies to withdraw troops from Russia.

FOOD DOCTOR TO GIVE ADVICE ON DIET

Mrs. Elbert A. Harvey Named Official Dietitian in Brookline

By PAUL HARRIS DRAKE.

The town of Brookline has the honor to be the first community in the world to employ an official dietitian. Mrs. Elbert A. Harvey has the honor to be the first to hold the office.

According to the vote of the recent Brookline town meeting, the supervision of the diet of Brookline citizens will be vested in a board of control co-operating with the Brookline Board of Health. This board will expend an appropriation of $3,750 during the remaining nine months of 1919.

Henceforth Brookline mothers, housewives, butlers and cooks, who want to learn the whys and wherefores of a "balanced ration" will be invited to "ask Mrs. Harvey."

"Ask Mrs. Harvey," has been adopted as the official slogan of the Brookline Food Centre. This branch of the Brookline Health Department is under the direction of Mrs. Roland G. Hopkins and a committee of three prominent Brookline women, who assisted most effectively in the work of food conservation during the war. "We want people to consult the dietitian as freely as they would a doctor," said Mrs. Hopkins.

Do you want to know how to feed growing children? Ask Mrs. Harvey. Are you interested in diet for prospective mothers? Ask Mrs. Harvey. Is your problem what to put into children's school lunches? Ask Mrs. Harvey. Are you puzzled as to the contents and variety of "the full dinner pail" carried by your hard-working husband? Ask Mrs. Harvey.

"We have no set plans of procedure," said Mrs. Harvey, "and shall simply let the office adapt itself to the needs of the community. Our idea is to be serviceable, that's all. We believe there is just as much need of food education and instruction in reconstruction and peace times as during the war. That is why we are continuing the work of the past two years.

"I think the position offers a most interesting experiment, and sincerely hope if the innovation proves successful, that the idea will spread."

The work of Mrs. Harvey's Department, under the direction of Mrs. Roland G. Hopkins, aims to include a carefully planned campaign of publicity. The slogan "Ask Mrs. Harvey" will feature the publicity material throughout.

Few women have had as solid grounding in their professions as that boasted by Mrs. Harvey.

She holds a bachelor's degree from Vassar College, an A. M. in food chemistry from Columbia University, and a teacher's certificate in dietetics from the Teacher's College at Columbia. Following her graduation in dietetics she spent two years as instructor in the department of household economics at Simmons College.

MAINE PLANS MEDICAL INSPECTION OF SCHOOLS

Augusta, Me., March 26.—The committee on public health today reported to the Legislature in a new draft an act providing for the medical inspection of school children.

The new draft provides that it shall be the duty of all towns and cities in the State having a school enrollment of more than 1,000 pupils to install medical inspection of school children and to provide school nurses on or before the close of the year 1920 or if all towns and cities with a school enrollment of 500 before the year 1921, and of all towns and cities having a school enrollment of 200 or more before the year 1924.

RUB YOUR BACK! STOPS LUMBAGO

Don't drug kidneys! Rub the pain right out with old "St. Jacobs Liniment"

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now, listen! That's lumbago, sciatica, or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Liniment!" Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store and after using it just once you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 50 years. Stop drugging kidneys! They don't cause backache, because they have no nerves. Therefore cannot cause pain.—Advertisement.

SUNDAY BALL BILL TRICK IN R.I. FAILS

Opponents to Sunday Sport Fail to "Spike" Senate Bill, Say Legislators

Providence, March 26. — Sunday baseball opponents "put one over" on the Senate Judiciary Committee and filled the committee room with men, who protested against the passage of the Sunday baseball bill when the committee members thought they had arranged for a private hearing at which it was expected President W. H. P. Faunce of Brown University and Bishop James DeWolf Perry of the Episcopal Church would be present to object.

The so-called coup was well under way when a political leader caused the private hearing to come to a close [illegible] a caucus to select a candidate for the Superior Court bench.

SAY BILL WILL STAND.

The Sunday baseball bill will be reported favorably by the committee this week, say members of the committee.

The calling of the private hearing by the committee is looked upon as "inside politics," and it was deemed advisable to give President Faunce and Bishop Perry an opportunity to be heard on the baseball question.

The word was secretly passed and the date set. The committee members were prepared to meet both gentlemen when, to their surprise, the committee room was filled with members of the New England Lord's Day League.

Committee members are said to have been peeved when they discovered that President Faunce and Bishop Perry were not present, but decided to "sit it out."

CAUCUS SOLVES DILEMMA.

The dilemma was known to majority leaders, who found a way to extricate their brother members by calling a caucus, much to the chagrin of a score of opponents of Sunday baseball. It is said to be the first time a so-called private hearing was called on a question similar to legalizing Sunday baseball and opponents believe they have put a "spike" in the passage of the measure.

This contention is not shared by committee members, who say the bill will be reported with recommendation of passage despite the private hearing.

JAPANESE SIBERIAN FORCE IS NOW 54,000

Washington, March 26.—The strength of Japan's Siberian forces is 54,000 troops, State Department officials revealed, following the publication of dispatches stating the number had been reduced to 100,000 by the withdrawal of 50,000.

The number originally was 72,000. It was stated, withdrawals amounting to 18,000.

The Japanese were continuing to lessen the strength of this force, officials added.

915,000 BOYS HOME BY JULY 1, SAYS MARCH

St. Louis, March 26.—There will be no delay in the return of American troops from Siberia due to the situation in Hungary, according to General Peyton C. March, chief of staff, U. S. A., who spent three minutes here changing trains.

"We plan to have 915,000 soldiers home by July 1," said General March.

Wanted Her to Become Gypsy, Says Wife Asking Divorce

Portland, Me., March 25. — A trip South "Gypsy style" in an automobile was suggested by Edwin H. Lents of Boston, although he was unable to get enough money to properly care for his wife and baby, according to Margaret E. Lents of this city, who seeks a divorce for non-support and cruel treatment.

Crying bitterly, Mrs. Lents told Judge Sanborn in the Superior Court that her husband refused to let her see her sister when the latter was dying with pneumonia, and that she had to work to get a living for her three-year-old baby, which she claimed her husband had threatened to take from her.

STEAMER MERRIMACK IS SOLD FOR JUNK

Newburyport, March 26.—After remaining in dock for six years the old stern-wheel steamer Merrimack, which plied between Salisbury Beach and Haverhill for some twenty years as an excursion boat of the Merrimack Valley Navigation Company of Haverhill, has been sold for junk to Philip Michaelson of Gloucester.

WITH FINGERS! CORNS LIFT OUT

Freezone is magic! Corns and calluses lift right off—Doesn't hurt a bit

A few cents buys a tiny bottle of the magic Freezone at any drug store. Apply a few drops of Freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly that troublesome corn or callus stops hurting, then shortly you lift it out, root and all, without any pain, soreness or irritation. These little bottles of Freezone contain just enough to rid the feet of every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes and the calluses on bottom of feet. So simple. Why wait? No humbug!

Despised Foods Again Favored

Correcting Stomach Faults With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Has Revived the Doughnut, Pie and Other Good Home-Made American Dishes.

The shortage of help has taken thousands of women back to their own kitchens to do their own cooking. And how natural they should revive the cookie, doughnut, pie and other distinctly American dishes. But the recipes have been revised; flour is coarser and different; less wheat and more of other kinds, and a lot of indigestion was complained of.

It is gratifying to know you can safely eat any kind of flour food without consequent distress. Simply take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after meals. Not only does it aid digestion, but it arouses the stomach to secrete the juices necessary to relieve sourness, heartburn, gas, the sense of sluggishness and the drowsiness that so often follow the good things you eat.

Try these tablets and you will then realize what influence they have, not only to assist digestion, but as contributing in a remarkable degree to the sense of comfort and well-being. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold in all drug stores at 50 cents a box, and throughout the United States and Canada.—Advertisement.

NUXATED IRON

You Can Tell the Women with Plenty of Iron in their Blood — Beautiful Healthy Rosy Cheeked Women Full of Life, Vim and Vitality.

Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author, says physicians should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their patients—for a lack of organic iron—iron deficiency—is the greatest curse to the health, strength, vitality and beauty of the modern American Woman.—Sounds warning against use of metallic iron which may injure the teeth, corrode the stomach and in some cases thereby do more harm than good, advocates of only nuxated iron, which has proven its worth for over 20 years. It will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks or money back. Obtainable at all good druggists.

People Constipated and Don't Know It

It seems odd, but it is true, that you may be constipated and not know it.

You can see why it is. Take a glass and pour in water until full. If you keep on pouring in water after the glass is full it will run over, but the glass stays full.

Just so with your bowels; they get full of waste matter, and then they pass off except from the body only about the same amount that goes into it in this form of food.

So you may have a movement of the bowels every day and yet there will remain waste matter that ought to be removed.

Give your bowels a gentle but thorough cleaning out and you'll feel great.

A fine prescription for this is put up and sold under the name of Dr. True's Elixir. Doctors and druggists use it in their own families. Costs but little and brings health to men, women and children. Sweet and pleasant tasting. Works gently. Children like it. Remember the name, Dr. True's Elixir.

Reckless People Take Warning!

Don't Cut or Pare Your Corns

Every Spring hundreds of people cut their corns and invite lockjaw and blood poison. Don't do it again. Join the suicide club if you will, but cut out the reckless corn habit. There's a simple, safe and reliable way to end your corn misery for good. Just one drop, no more, no less. Your druggist has a small jar of Ice-Mint, full of Hiffen, for any tender, aching corn or callous. Instantly the soreness ends, and soon the corn or callous loosens and can be lifted out easily with the fingers, root and all. There is no pain and not one bit of soreness while applying Ice-Mint or afterwards. It does not even irritate the surrounding skin. It makes the feet feel cool, easy and comfortable, and is greatly appreciated by women who wear high heel shoes and by men who have to stand on their feet all day. Try it. It costs little, yet one jar is sufficient to rid you of every corn or callous, and your foot troubles for good. Why wait? There is nothing better.—Advertisement.

For Freckled, Rough or Spotty Complexions

The freckling, discoloring or roughening by which telltale skins are subject after exposure to wind or sun often appearing in early spring, may readily be gotten rid of. Mercolised wax, spread lightly over the face before retiring and removed in the morning with soap and water completely peels off the disfigured skin. Get an ounce of the wax at any druggist's. There's no more effective way of banishing freckles or other unsightliness of defective skin as particles come off each day. So the process doesn't even temporarily mar the complexion, and one soon acquires a brand new, beautiful, sprightly looking face.

Wrinkles caused by weather, worry or illness are best treated by a simple solution of powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face with this produces a truly marvelous transformation.—Advertisement.

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE BOSTON AMERICAN

SENATOR KING ON COVENANT AMENDMENTS

By Universal Service.

Washington, March 26.—Amendments to the constitution of the League of Nations, which have been proposed by United States Senator King of Utah and forwarded to President Wilson in Paris for the purpose of protecting American rights, are explained in the following article which Senator King has prepared for the American.

By WILLIAM H. KING,
United States Senator From Utah.

It is not to be conceived that any plan or constitution will meet everycontingency or prove entirely satisfactory to any nation party thereto. The Constitution of the United States is the result of compromise upon the part of the States, and no important treaty, agreement or instrument affecting nations has received the support of all people or been free from just criticism.

I think it will be conceded that President Wilson, as well as others attending the Peace Conference at Paris, have approached the world-wide problems calling for solution with a profound appreciation of the heavy responsibilities resting upon them.

This republic is seeking neither indemnity nor territory and sincerely and earnestly desires that a just and lasting treaty shall result, and so far as humanly possible will prevent wars and international conflicts for the future.

DRAFT NOT PERFECTED.

He has submitted a proposed draft of a League of Nations. No one contends that it is perfect or that it should not be amended.

Ex-President Taft avers that it is not symmetrically arranged, that its language is "ponderous," and that its meaning "has to be dug out." The reservation of the Monroe Doctrine, he admits, should be made more definite.

Mr. Bryan has called attention to some defects "that should be corrected," and he states that "the fullest discussion of proposed amendments should be invited." It is vital that the peace treaty should be completed at the earliest possible moment.

In my opinion there has already been too much delay, and this is in part responsible for the spread of Bolshevism in Europe, but imperative as it is that the treaty should speedily be prepared, it is important that it shall not contain provisions injurious or deadly to this republic.

OBSCURE POINTS CLARIFIED.

I have ventured to suggest several amendments to the draft of the proposed league. I abbreviated many of the articles by changing the phraseology and eliminating language which finds no suitable place in a document of this character. Some of the provisions that were obscure and uncertain I attempted to clarify.

Many persons who are sympathetic with the idea of a League of Nations are deeply concerned over its provisions with respect to guaranteeing the territorial respect and existing political independence of all States members of the league. It is believed by many that the submitted draft chrystalizes the status quo of all States signatory to the league, that it would produce an inflexible and rigid system under which legitimate and justifiable revolution or change would be impossible.

AS TO IRELAND AND CANADA.

Attention has been called to Canada and Ireland and the statement frequently made that if either of these countries should seek to escape Great Britain's control this nation, as well as other States parties to the league, would be compelled to aid in quelling any revolt and compelling continued subservience to the domination of the British Empire.

I have suggested a change in the draft that would not require this republic to undertake military operations against Ireland or Canada or provinces or territories similarly situated to compel their perpetual subjection to existing governments.

In my opinion what may properly be denominated domestic and national questions is contradistinction to international questions should not be committed to the league, but reserved to the States constituting the league to themselves respectively.

I have, therefore, proposed an additional article dealing with this question, which provides that the States of the league acknowledge that the scope of these articles does not include the proper domestic, internal, or national policy of any State and that these articles do not confer upon the league any powers with respect to immigration, imposts, prohibitions, inheritance, naturalization or citizenship, and it is expressly declared that the enumeration of these matters of policy in this article shall not in any wise limit or restrict the right of any State with respect to its national and internal political powers and sovereignty as recognized by the law of nations.

MONROE DOCTRINE CLAUSE.

In my opinion there should be a provision permitting States to withdraw from the league. I have therefore seconded in a few words the withdrawal of States from the league.

There has been strong criticism of the submitted draft because of its abrogation or modification of the Monroe Doctrine. It seems to me too clear for argument that the policy of the United States in so far as the Monroe Doctrine, is materially modified by the submitted draft. I have suggested an additional article dealing with this importang subject.

In substance, it declares that the States of the league acknowledge the Monroe Doctrine and recognize that it has for its principal purpose the protection of the territorial integrity and political independence of the free States of North and South America against the colonial enterprises of foreign powers.

LIEUT. JAMES REESE EUROPE, conductor of 369th Infantry "Hell Fighters" Band and master of syncopated melody.

Boston, according to all indications, will not be shocked when the famous "Hell Fighters," to the accompaniment and with the aid of their own music, make a syncopated and generally melodious and harmonic investment of the Hub on Friday and Saturday next.

The "Hell Fighters" are none other than the 369th United States Infantry, formerly the 15th National Guard Regiment of New York, who, since they returned from the war the last week in February with their regiment, of whose members 171 were presented with the Croix de Guerre, have been playing a short local time in and around New York.

Nobody in Boston will ever try to reconcile Jazz music with the standardized classical and semi-classical which this stronghold of the arts has been in the habit of hearing. But it is a safe bet that on next Friday and Saturday afternoons and night there will be large audiences in the Boston Opera House who will not be able to keep their feet still, or remain motionless in their seats, try as they will.

Lieutenant James Reese Europe, conductor of the 369th Infantry Band, is himself no stranger in Boston, for he has conducted orchestras at balls in some of the best known homes in this city.

Lieutenant Europe has been called the Henry Ford of syncopated melody, and he has recruited, trained and led the band throughout their services overseas. At different times they were stationed at St. Lazaire, Chaumont, Brest, Nantes, Aix-les-Bains and Paris. They helped to stimulate and cheer up the men at the front and the soldiers in rest, billets and hospitals. They were sent into liberated villages to keep up the morale of the civilian populations.

Accompanying the band is Lieutenant Noble Sissle, a tenor with a fine voice, an octette of vocalists and solo instrumentalists. Sissle is the former drum major of the band whom readers of Irvin Cobb's story of "Young Black Joe" will recall.

EXPECT ELECTION OF JEW AS RHODE ISLAND JUDGE

Providence, March 26. — J. Jerome Hahn will be elected by the General Assembly tomorrow to the Superior Court bench as the choice of the Republican caucus, according to political schedule. Attorney Hahn is said to be the first Jew considered for a judicial position in the State. With the General Assembly standing 99 Republican to 44 Democratic, Hahn's selection is looked upon as certain for endorsement.

AVIATOR TO PILOT WHEAT FARM MANAGER

New York, March 26. — Erhardt Schmidt of Ansonia, Ct., former United States aviatory has been employed on the Hardin (Mont.), wheat farm of J. P. Morgan. One of his duties will be to pilot the farm manager to distant parts of the estate in an airplane, which will be equipped with wireless.

FRENCH BOYS ARE NOW SAYING "GIMME A CHEW"

French peasant boys are fast learning to chew American gum, according to Chief Clerk D. S. Fish of the Quartermaster's Department of the Army, who has just returned from overseas. He says: "The American soldier in going through the villages has been seen chewing gum. Soon every boy I met in the villages said: 'Gimme a chew.' They have learned the phrase to use in asking for it."

COMMANDANT RUSH'S DAUGHTER TO WED MAY 10

Miss Catherine Rees Rush, daughter of Commandant and Mrs. William R. Rush, and James J. Cabot, recently of the air service, will be married in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, the afternoon of May 10. Dean E. S. Rousmaniere will officiate. Mr. Cabot is twenty-seven. Miss Rush twenty-four.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY COURSE BY GATHANY

March 31 is registration day for the third term at the College of Liberal Arts of Boston University. This week the students are on a brief vacation, after the term examinations, which ended Friday. A new course will be introduced in "Current History," with reference to international relations. J. Madison Gathany, head of the department of history of the Hope Street High School, Providence, will be the lecturer.

NEWTONVILLE MAN TAKES LIFE WITH GAS

Hubert G. Seeley, seventy-two, a cobbler, was found dead with a gas tube in his mouth at his shop at No. 877A Washington street, Newtonville.

When Seeley did not return to his home his wife went to the shop, where she found Seeley on the floor, the room filled with gas.

JUDGE DOWD PREDICTS SCRAMBLE FOR BALKANS

"Europe is looking for its pound of flesh, and America will soon be treated to the spectacle of a wild scramble for the Balkan territories and the Asiatic trade," Judge Thomas H. Dowd of the Municipal Court told members of the Boston Druggists' Association. The present congress of Nations is not fitted to all the conditions which must arise," continued the judge, who approved the principle of a league, but doubted the practicality of the one proposed.

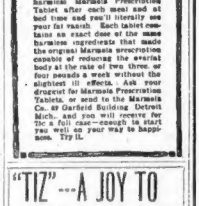
You Cannot Hide Fat.

IF too thin, your dressmaker or tailor can supply the deficiencies, but the overfat carry a burden they can not conceal.

There is but one alternative.—Reduce! To do so it is no longer necessary to go to starvation dieting and exhaustive exercising. There is now a safe, sane, pleasant way. Just take one little harmless Marmola Prescription Tablet after each meal and at bed time and you'll literally see your fat vanish. Each tablet contains an exact dose of the same harmless ingredients that made the original Marmola prescription famous by reducing the stout body at the rate of two, three, or four pounds a week without the slightest ill effects. Ask your druggist for Marmola Prescription Tablets, or send to the Marmola Co. 89 Garfield Building Detroit Mich. and you will receive for 75c a full case—enough to start you well on your way to happiness. Try it.

"TIZ"—A JOY TO SORE, TIRED FEET

Use "Tiz" for aching, burning, puffed-up feet and corns or callouses



"Sure! I use 'TIZ' every time for any foot trouble."

Good-bye, sore feet, burning feet, swollen feet, tender feet, perspiring feet. Good-bye corns, callouses, bunions and raw spots. No more shoe tightness, no more limping with pain or drawing up your face in agony. "Tiz" is magical, acts right off. "Tiz" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. Use "Tiz" and wear smaller shoes. Use "Tiz" and forget your foot troubles. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel. Get a 25-cent box of "Tiz" now at any druggist or department store. Don't suffer. Have good feet. Glad feet, feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired. A year's foot comfort guaranteed or money refunded.—Advertisement.

EVERETT SCOTT IS HOLD-OUT; JONES, TOO

Tampa, Fla., March 26.—Pitcher Joe Bush has reported to Manager Barrow of the Red Sox. Harry Hooper, the only other absentee, has wired he will be along tomorrow.

By JACK CONWAY.

Tampa Fla., Mar h 26 — Everett Scott, greatest Shortstop in the American League, has not signed his Red Sox contract for this year.

A difference on the question of salary and the refusal to sign a document which contains the fenday release clause are the reasons why this brilliant performer is still outside the Barrow fold.

Prior to the opening of the Spring training season Scott wired the American he had not signed. The information was later given out at the Red Sox headquarters, at home, that the club had satisfied Everett and he would report for training soon.

Scott arrived before the main party, but he has not signed a contract. Like Carl Mays, who is still a holdout he has been working out daily with the rest.

Sam Jones, one of the big four pitchers in another holdout name to also here, at Lake Scott, the club gave the public the impression he had signed a 1919 contract.

RUTH SET THE PACE.

The signing of Ruth for three years at a contract said to call for $9 000 per will not assist Owner Frazee and Manager Barrow in coming to terms with Mays, Jones and Scott.

Ruth is just about the greatest attraction in baseball and will draw at the gate the salary increase he will receive this year. Mays, Scott and Jones, on the other hand, are all mighty important cogs in the World's Champion machine, and, without either member of this trio, the grand old Ryer would have highly tough going.

Scott is in a position to force his demands. He is the class at his position in the Johnson circuit. While he only batted for .211 last year, he secured many of his hits in the pinch, which makes him all the more valuable to a club which is a pennant contender.

Mays is the backbone of the pitching staff. Ruth is expected to work in the box 1 s year, but in 1918 he occupied a regular position in the lineup most of the time. It was Babe's mighty batting, rather than his pitching, which gained fame for him. Consequently, in rating the Sox hurlers, first position must be given to Mays.

FRAZEE DUE THIS WEEK.

Frazee is expected here the latter part of the week. He will then get down to cases with his holdouts, as he is eager to have all his athletes signed before they start their barnstorming trip north.

If Frazee is delayed several weeks in signing Ruth, he might have been able to come to terms more quickly with Mays, Scott and Jones. Aware that Ruth received big money, this trio of stars feels fully entitled to their share of the big gravied

Meanwhile Barrow's outfit is rapidly getting into condition for Manager Jones has had his first workout and seems that he looks forward to a successful season.

The pitchers are far advanced in their training. Mays, in particular, is in grand condition.

ERNIE SHORE ON DECK AND GOOD AS SIGNED

Jacksonville, Fla., March 26.—Ernie Shore, former Red Sox pitcher, has entered the Yankees' camp and Shorey says Jacob Ruppert early today he was confident he would succeed in signing the big fellow after he talked over matters with him. Dutch Leonard is now the club's only absentee.

Last Night in Ring

Providence—Battling Nelson of Brooklyn defeated Young Goulet of Woonsocket, twelve rounds; Harry Ar Chase of Salem outpointed Frankie Burns of Providence, ten rounds.

Toledo—Mike Gibbons, St. Paul middleweight, won all the way from Leo Houck of Lancaster, Pa., eight rounds.

Hungry Oil Co. Versus Orville Fish

DEAR MR. HUNGRY—You birds must be the original Oilsnevks. I took my stock certificate down to the landlord and the old rette never gave me a tumble. He said it was a beautiful sample of needlework, but about as useful as the wrong end of a hornet. Said it was too smooth to be used as sandpaper and not sticky enough to catch flies. Unless you shoot me some dividends I want my eight hundred smackers' worth of Liberty Bonds back. Your feebly, ORVILLE FISH.

Another Letter from Kris Kringle.

FRIEND FISH Our pet oil well is gushing like a crippled fountain pen Your first dividend is an intricate photograph of Mr Hungry, the man who discovered the first banana oil well in the north. In addition, we also send you a prospectus of our new cod liver oil well. We don't want any of our investors to lose their faith in Santa Claus. If you have any more Liberty Bonds rattling around loose like, don't fail to stick them into our new hair oil well.

Yours until the Rockies fold up,
HUNGRY OIL CO.

Poor Fish Gets Sore.

HUNGRY OIL WORKS Your photograph looks like the picture of the guy who invented barbed wire. If I knew that you were one of those side-whiskered cuckoos I would have taken my eight hundred iron boys for a swim over Niagara Falls. One of your lamps looks like the buttonhole in a lapel. Is that a squint or a wink? What is that medal on your chest? Yours dizzily,
ORVILLE FISH.

DEAR FISH—That decoration is the Croix de Double Croix for extraordinary conduct in the face of danger. We also have the Extinguished Service Medal. We are sending you another fat dividend in the shape of six more catalogues. Don't let prosperity turn your noodle.
Yours until the flesh stop hopping,
HUNGRY OIL CO.

Sidewhiskers and Thumb Prints.

HUNGRY OIL CO.—I have sent your picture to the bulls. They sent it back, as they had one already If you told me you had sidewhiskers you can bet a chewed ice cream cone against the national debt that I would still be snoring on my Liberty Bonds I never saw a bird with those ear warmers that you could trust as far as you could throw a piano. Yours stupidly,
FISH.

STOCKHOLDER FISH—That's the fifty-seventh time that photograph has been pinched. I hope you didn't send that picture to Sing Sing, as I have one picture up there that is doing six years. We were about to tows you a carload of dividends, as our Giant Well suddenly cut loose and started gushing like a dizzy wind. We almost got a demitasse of oil before it folded up. The trouble with our oil wells is that this country has voted dry. Yours until the Crown Prince grows a chin,
HUNGRY OIL CO.

HUNGRY OIL CO.—When you dragged me away from my Liberty Bonds you buzzed me that I would have it as soft as a fire chief in an asbestos village. I think that the only oil you guys deal in is the old ear oil. You sure had me oiled up when you amputated me loose from those Liberty Bonds. Either send those bonds back or I will come up to Maine and knock you for a row of totem poles. Yours between the coke and the needle,
FISH.

Some More Fish Food.

DEAR FISH—You chirp as if we had slipped you the old hypo. Be patient. Remember that Rome wasn't bilked in a day. We admit that we are into your hide for eight hundred berries worth of Liberty Bonds, but think of the danger we are taking Drilling oil wells is very dangerous, as your foot is liable to slip off the rail any minute. My partner and myself are about to drill another well. If we can strike clam chowder or beef stew our fortunes are made. We will let you in easy for two hundred dollars.
Yours until Bryan votes for beer and light wines.
HUNGRY OIL CO.

One Fall and Two Bounces.

HUNGRY OIL CO.—I am sorry I bawled you plenty in my last letter. Enclosed find two Liberty Bonds for stock in your beef stew well. My wife says you are all wrong, but if she knew anything she wouldn't be my wife Send me some dividends, as the landlord is waiting downstairs with an axe under each arm and one behind each ear
FISH.
Yours on the old hook.

Joe Lynch, Hingham, defeated Alex MacLane, Fort Andrews, in straight falls in the wrestling match which featured the service sport show at Hingham Naval Training Station.

HARVARD SPRING REGATTA SET FOR MAY 23

Harvard's annual Spring regatta will be held May 22, 23, 24. Bad news, though is that the rowing management has been unsuccessful in its efforts to get a university race, both Columbia and Pennsylvania refusing to arrange a race away from home.

School boy races will have a prominent place in the program opening day. Races may be arranged for the Harvard freshman and second crew, crews from the Union Boat club, Tufts, Tech and some of the private schools also are expected to take part.

The University rowing squad resumes practice Friday when college reopens. Captain Whitman has picked the first crew from the showing of the men so far, while the remaining oarsmen in Crews A and B will form the second University eight. There will also be a third crew.

Coach Haines will give the first and second crews a stiff test a week before he will decide whether any changes are necessary in the regular eight. The rowing order, which will probably be the same in the triangular regatta with Princeton and Annapolis, follows:

Stroke, Captain F. B. Whitman, '19; No. 7, N. Bruser, '19; No. 6, G. L. Satterlee, '19; No. 5, R. M. Sedgwick, '21; No. 4, D. H. Morris, '21; No. 3, John Linden, '19; No. 2, C. F. Hatzfeldter, '20; bow, D. Leighton, '19; cox, Edward Peirson, '21.

McGraw Picks New Swat Order; Kauff to Swing Seventh

By SAM CRANE.

Gainesville, Fla., March 26.—Manager McGraw of the New York Giants lined up his regulars in their batting practice in the following order:

Burns, Young, Chase, Zimmerman, Frisch, Doyle, Kauff, Mc-Carty or Earl Smith and the pitcher.

Barring accidents, it will be the same in the first championship game.

It will be seen that Benny Kauff is placed seventh in the order.

The shift of that heavy hitter to a lower position than he ever occupied before was made because McGraw aims to make the combined hitting strength of his team most effective, and not by reason of any falling off in Benny's batting stuff.

HARVARD TOSSERS TO GET DRILL OUTDOORS

Harvard's baseball squad was to report for practice this afternoon, after almost a week's layoff. With outdoor practice now possible, Coach Huck Duffy will have a chance to size up his big flock of pitchers.

BRADY'S FLASHY FINISH EARNS HIM DRAW

TONIGHT'S BOXING CARD

Benny Leonard vs. Harvey Thorpe, Jopiin, Mo.
Augie Ratner vs. Boy McCormick, at London.

By RINGSIDE.

K O Mars, Cincinnati lightweight, made good with a bang in his twelve-round Quroseberry quarrel with Ralph Brady, Syracuse's cracker-jack little nineteen-year-old glovesman, which featured the Armory A. A. card, Grand Opera House.

Referee Larry Conley rendered a draw verdict, and, all things considered, his call was a good one Where Mars had the gate to throw an express on from Master B Collyer, getting off to such a pudgy lead, the odds shifted from 2 to 1 against him to 2 to 1 in his favor Brady flashed the noblest in the last half of the scrap.

Mars is an oldtimer in comparison to Brady. The Cincinnati boy has been operating in Middle West rings for upwards of eight or ten years. While Brady was a complete flash unknown this time a year ago, Artist Teller Kansas and La Salle, Ill., the Syracuse lightweight let the Kid had met prior to last night.

Though ostensible one of those the-wrong-fist-first boys, Mars is a two-handed workman. His likewise owns the kick, exactly as his name implies.

He was all over Brady at the start and had Raph looking like a second-rater for six rounds But the latter hit it up in blue in the closing stanzas, was practically right there with Mars at the final bell and Conley's even-steven call pleased, generally speaking.

Willie Green was too strong, ditto too heavy, for Battling Green in the semi-final, and stopped the Hartford boy in the fourth round The Battling one went down from a stomach blow He made a feeble attempt to claim foul and showed good judgment letting the curtain flop down on the sad act-to

The following card has been arranged for the Matinee Boxing Club show Friday night: Bobby Dyson vs. Young Dempsey, ten rounds; Joe O'Connell vs. Young Rushey, ten rounds; Bert Roberts vs. Chuck Manning, six rounds, and Fred Welsh vs. Tommy Moore, six rounds.

Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, is billed to show at Joplin, Mo., tonight. His foe is Harvey Thorpe and the bout will go ten rounds—or less.

Charley Parker has taken himself up to the wilds of Maine for a couple of weeks' rest.

Jim McDonald, who handles the ring affairs of George Robinson, dusky Cambridge battler, wants to know what special brand of Bolshevik Tommy Robson is suffering from McDonald says no Malden boy has given it out he will be unable to do any ring-work for some time owing to an "injured fist." He went on the stage at the Fenway Club and hurled challenges at Mike O'Dowd and others

Robinson's $100 forfeit is still on deposit with the sporting editor of the American and any time Robson is looking for better he can have a go.

An Malden Tommy is reported to have hurled a challenge at the Cambridge boy, but it seems quite proper he should meet McDonald and his battler half way and have it over with.

Red Allen and Phinney Boyle are the boys Limey at the Daily Cycle Club, Lawrence, tomorrow night. Allen is the youngster who recently battered Young Murphy in one round before the same club

There's another gent going on the blacklist; the chap wiring the American that Joe Ball is keyed At Willie at Westfield Monday night. 'Twas Wiltes who got over the hayo, stopping Butch in the third frame.

Malden heavy Robson continues to sidestep George Robinson and Johnny Wilson. Here's his new bookings: Next Monday, Frank Carbone at Portland, Me.; April 7, Young Fisher at Syracuse; April 8, Jack McCarron at Reading, Pa.; April 14, Harry Greb at Syracuse.

Notice to Amateurs' Managers

BILL JAMES AT CAMP; COLTS WIN, 6 TO 5

By NICK FLATLEY.

Columbus, Ga., March 26.—Spring training in this sector of the Cotton Belt continues to move along so smoothly that Manager Stallings is now beginning to worry about it.

Contrary to custom, not a thing in the line of misfortune has come over the baseball horizon, and, according to the Miracle Man, it all seems too good to be true

Bill can't stop himself from making his healthy army of athletes work three hours a day as he may have never worked before, either in the spring or during the season Hard luck may come along later, but Georgia George is taking full advantage of fortune's present smiling guiles.

IT'S A HAPPY FAMILY.

The weather certainly has been just about the sort one would have ordered and he's pleased, and the new spirit that possessed diamond stars these post bellum times has led everybody to take full advantage.

Speaking of said spirit, the players, who were in the service, have an entirely new idea of things, and their impress on is having effect with the boys who didn't get in Here's the way one of the Braves explained it

"Before I got into the service, I didn't know what discipline was, now I do. We used to crab when we had to play exhibition games, or were forced to be in bed at midnight, or were brought out for morning practices. We kicked at trains, and at everything else. But I've been over a and so has everybody else that was in the service, and we're living under orders means

"We've all found out, too, that baseball salaries stick out mighty big, after one serves Not that we're kicking, we were glad to help, but we've found out a lot of things about baseball since boosting the game from the p a to the side of it"

JAMES ON WINNING SIDE.

Large William James has joined the squad for his ultimate tryout, and was out playing the garden for the Crackers. Bill isn't as heavy as was usual with him in the spring days of the past but doesn't appear to be hurt a bit, and should get into shape speedily.

James hasn't tried baseball since he went in the army and hopes the present may have given him the long-sought chance to come back.

The Crackers started out a winning streak over the Rockets, 6 to 5. The boys are going to get that their batting eyes are taking advantage of Ty Cobb's tutelage and have been ordered to go at it in earnest.

Rudolph Hasn't passed for the duties of Catcher but Howard and Meigh have been making a bid for the ambitious Crackers

THE DARK STAR

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

THRILLING ROMANCE OF AN AMERICAN GIRL

One of the Newest and Best Novels of Intrigue, Love and War From This Famous Author's Pen, Full of Vivid Human Interest

Synopsis of the Story So Far

Ruhannah Carew, born in Trebizond, daughter of an American missionary. Reverend Wilbour Carew, accompanies her parents to their old home in Gayfield, New York State, after the father had been crippled by a Mohammedan fanatic. Her favorite amusement is playing with the wonder box of the late Herr Conrad Wilner, a few pieces of whose diary are always read by her father or mother to her as a bedtime story. The box contains treasures with which Rue plays and finds absorbing interest. She learns from the diary that Wilner saw the box being dropped from a yacht in the Bosphorus and fished it up with the body of a beautiful girl sewn in a sack.

Wilner, as an agent of the German government, makes plans for fortifying Gallipoli. The duplicates of these are stolen and he gets evidence that the Turks seek his life. He gives the box to Rev. Mr. Carew for safe keeping, with instructions to send the plans to Berlin in case he is killed. He is stoned to death, but Mr. Carew keeps the papers. Rue, as she grows up, longs to be an artist, but the family has only a pension and it is decided she must go to work. She meets Dick Neeland, who had known her as a child and who is now an artist. He dances with her and tells her of his success. She dreams of making a name for herself.

Copyright, 1917, by Robert W. Chambers.

SHE had been acting there watching her swimming cork for over an hour when the first light western breeze arrived, spreading a dainty ripple across the pond. Her eyes drifted, drifted beneath it and caught the [illegible] glittering [illegible] of the window, then the cork was jerked under and she clasped the pole with both her strength, struck upward, and a heavy pickerel, all gold and green, sprang furiously from the water and fell back with a sharp splash.

Under the sudden strain of the fish she nearly lost her balance, scrambled hastily down from the parapet, dropping the pole desperately against her body, and stood so, unheeding, unyielding, her eyes fixed on the water where the taut line cut it at forty-five degrees.

At the same time two men in a red racing speeding westward through a cloud of dust turned by the bridge where the ruins of the paper mill had been. The man driving the car nearly threw it over when he saw Ruhannah in the centre of the bridge. It was instantly all over so were both mudguards and one wheel, so were driver and passenger, floundering on their backs among the ferns, grass and wild flowers. Ruhannah, petrified, still fast to her fish, gazed at the catastrophe over her [illegible] shoulder.

[illegible] stream continued [illegible] ascend from the crumpled hood [illegible] even pressure, but [illegible] of the chief [illegible] and the [illegible] [illegible] back [illegible] clutching at car [illegible] continued to exert [illegible]

"[illegible] the short, [illegible]

"It [illegible] like it don't" added the other. The thunder boomed again beyond Gayfield hills.

What did you know about the" growled the thickset man, in utter disgust. "Do we hunt for a garage or what?"

"It's up to you, Eddie. And say! What was the matter with you? Don't you know a bridge when you see one?"

That damn girl—— He turned as I looked at Ruhannah, who was dragging the big flapping sleeve over the parapet by main strength.

The men growled at her in silence, then the one addressed as Eddie rolled his cigar grimly into the left corner of his jaw.

"Back [illegible] skirt," he observed briefly. "It seems to worry her a lot what she's done to us."

"I wonder does she know she wrecked us?" suggested the other. He was a stunted, wiry little man of thirty-five. His head seemed slightly too large; he had a pasty face with the sloe-black eyes, button nose, and the widely cleaved mouth of a circus clown.

The eyes of the short, thickset man were narrow and greyish green in a round, smoothly shaven face. They narrowed still more as the thunder broke louder from the west.

To Stop Her

Ruhannah, dragging her fish over the grass, was coming toward them and the man called Eddie stepped forward to bar her progress.

"Say, girlie," he began, the cigar still tightly screwed into his cheek, "is there a juice mill anywhere near——do you know?"

"What?" said Rue.

"A garage"

"Yes, there is one at Gayfield."

"How far, girlie?"

Rue flushed, but answered "It is half a mile that way."

The other man, noticing the color in Ruhannah's face, took off his pearl-grey hat. His language was less grammatical than his friend's, but his instincts were better.

"Thank you," he said—his companion staring at the girl without the slightest expression "Is there a telephone in any of them houses, miss?"—glancing around behind him at the three edifices which composed the crossroads called Brookho low

"No" said Rue

It thundered again: the world around had become very dusky and silent and the flash veined a rapidly blackening west

"It's going to rain buckets," said the man called Eddie "Perhaps you live around here, can you let us come into your house till it's over, girl—miss"

Quick Breads Quick

A PRACTICAL HOUSEHOLD ARTICLE

By Loretto C. Lynch

SOME housewives seem to have the knack of doing things so much more easily than others. And the difference seems to lie in the manipulating of the smaller details. This is especially true of quick breads.

Any woman who knows anything at all about cooking knows that flour, leavening, milk or water, eggs, salt and shortening are used in various combinations to produce delicious quick breads. Yet, we all know women who upset almost the entire kitchen in their efforts to make a pan of baking powder biscuit or in attempting a few griddle cakes. Other women seem to do these things with perfect ease and no effort at very little disorder.

And many a woman is prevented from trying to make the delicate popovers and the nut brown muffins by the thought of the disorder she has observed in the other woman's kitchen. A few points, however, may be of assistance and help her to make "quick breads quick."

I have found that the process which takes the most time is the measuring, mixing and sifting of the dry ingredients. And so I keep a quantity of "prepared" flour on hand. Tea biscuits, muffins and similar mixtures in which no eggs are used may be made from this kind of mixture. This is an example of good proportioning: 8 cups flour, 4 teaspoonsful baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt.

A standard half-pint cup is used for measuring, and the teaspoons of baking powder and salt are taken level with the aid of a case knife. There are but four cupfuls of flour in each pound. It is well to mix and sift two or three pounds of flour at one time with the correct amount of baking powder and salt.

Store it in glass preserving jars securely covered. The moisture in the air and the heat of your kitchen would tend to weaken the leavening power of the baking powder unless the mixture is securely covered. Label this "Prepared Flour for Quick Breads Without Eggs."

And then if company comes unexpectedly, and there is but little bread in the house, you can make a pan of piping hot rolls in twenty minutes or a dozen of tempting muffins in half an hour.

Take two cups of "prepared flour" and rub it into one or two level tablespoons of shortening until the mixture feels and looks like meal. With a knife cut in enough milk to make a soft dough. Anywhere from three-fourths to one whole measuring cup will be needed. The variation here depends on the kind of flour used. A flour from hard wheat is more "thirsty" flour than a flour from soft wheat. Housewives should bear this in mind and use judgment in following any recipe.

Toss the mass on to a lightly floured board and pat into a rectangle. Don't roll it less than one-half an inch in thickness. Dip a biscuit cutter into flour each time before cutting the biscuits. Arrange biscuit on a greased baking plate, brush over the top with a bit of soft paper dipped in milk. Bake about twelve minutes in a hot oven. If you have to bake these much longer than twelve minutes it indicates your oven is not hot enough.

Careful proportioning of ingredients, light handling, correct oven temperature and quick working is essential to success.

Take the same prepared flour for muffins. Put two cupfuls of flour in a bowl. Stir in enough milk to make a drop batter. From one cup to a cup and a half will be required. Add one-fourth cupful of melted fat. Beat well and bake in greased muffin cups for about twenty-five minutes. The oven should be hot for the first few minutes, and then the heat may be reduced. A drop batter drops from the spoon like thick cream. It should not contain sufficient milk to pour from the spoon like liquid, nor should it be as dry as the soft dough used for the biscuit.

Dry raisins, cleaned and boiled, may be added to these muffins. The boiling prevents their sinking to the bottom.

A pleasing variation of tea biscuit is the "Pinwheel Biscuit." These are very showy little morsels and are delicious if well handled. Roll a tea biscuit dough into a rectangle about one-fourth of an inch in thickness. Paint over the top of this rectangle with melted shortening. Sprinkle generously with boiled seedless raisins, a little citron or chopped apple, sugar and a very little cinnamon. Roll up like a jelly roll. With a sharp knife dipped in flour cut slices about half an inch in thickness. Arrange these, circular side down, on a greased baking plate. Brush over the top with milk. Bake in a hot oven about fifteen minutes.

Another prepared flour might contain less baking powder. Use one-half to one level teaspoon of baking powder to each cupful of flour for each egg you expect to use. Label this "prepared flour to use with eggs." For instance, a muffin or cake might be made from the following prepared flour: Two cupfuls flour, 2 teaspoonfuls baking powder (one wel-beaten egg added in the making and anywhere from no salt to half a teaspoonful will be all that is required. By adding sufficient milk to make a batter which readily pours from the spoon, plus quarter of a cupful of melted fat and two tablespoons of sugar, besides the beaten egg, you have an excellent pancake mixture.

Well Deserved Rebuke

An old countrywoman was plodding along a road with a heavy basket on her head. She had turned into a by-lane and proceeded about twenty yards when a motorist called out to her: "Ay, ay, there! Come back. I want to speak to you!" The old woman returned to the corner of the lane, put down her basket and waited. "I want to go to Netherpool," said the motorist. "The countrywoman was justly angry. Well, then, go," she replied, "no one wants to hinder ye!" and, labouriously replacing her basket on her head, she proceeded on her way.

About the New Chiffons

By Rita Stuyvesant

ALONG with all the other blessings of the season, Spring has brought with it the most delightful new chiffons and Georgette crepes in quaint designs. The shops are showing a lovely assortment of these pretty materials and you can imagine all sorts of lovely frocks when you see the material strewn over the shop counters. And considering the charm and daintiness of the patterns, the price is, very reasonable.

Corn-color taffeta combined with yellow and white Georgette to create one of the loveliest little frocks I have seen for Spring. The material was white and was plentifully sprinkled with yellow corn leaves, conventionalized into a clever design.

Frills are frivolous, and this frock was indeed gay with its numerous tiny taffeta ruffles set on several inches below the waist and continuing to the ankles. The bodice, too, was quaint, with its square neck and long flare sleeves. Ruffles about an inch wide outline the neck and sleeves, and were set on three rows deep. And then to enhance the delicate beauty of the crepe there was a narrow blue grosgrain sash with long ends drooping fa back. The butterfly daintiness of the frock appeals strongly to that delightful age known as the "teens."

The matron will revel in a gown of violet crepe printed in orchids and trimmed with filet lace. Apron tunics, pointed in front and cut away in the back, are smart when bordered with lace. A skirt, not too narrow for comfort, is shown beneath the tunic. This sheer tissue does not lend itself readily to extremely narrow skirts and is more graceful when soft and clinging.

Surplice blouses have been favored again and are charming made of flowered chiffon. Rather full sleeves are caught in at the wrists and lengthened with long drooping frills picoted on the edge. A lace trimmed fichu finishes the neck, and one can add a girdle of orchid satin if desired.

Another type of blouse that combines equally well with the apron tunic skirt is a simple model with deep oval neck line. The back is covered by a broad collar, falling to the waist line and bordered with lace, but the front of the blouse is quite plain. A tiny piping of satin will accentuate the oval neck and a ruched girdle of self-material will complete the frock.

In fact she fabric and delightful color lies the daintiness of these new chiffon and Georgette crepes, and one can easily fashion lovely frocks from the pretty material.

Love Versus Selfishness

SIMPLE TEST FOR GENUINE AFFECTION

By Beatrice Fairfax.

TO determine whether love is genuine or counterfeit, there is a simple test that every one may apply—its name is unselfishness.

Which do you desire more, the thing that is best for your beloved —or your own selfish happiness? Are you willing to pursue rapture at the cost of your beloved's peace of mind, sworn obligations, life itself—if you are doubtful, for a moment imagine yourself in love. You are merely pursuing your happiness without counting the cost to anyone else. You are a love Bolshevik who tears down for the primitive impulse of destruction.

And do not imagine that "love" built on any such foundation is going to last. Next year, or the year after next, at most, is likely to see you in the throes of a similar emotional convulsion, with the sole difference that another figure occupies the foreground.

I have letters from people daily, who imagine they are deeply in love, when their grand opera sensations are nothing more than malignant selfishness. It's a case of "wanting what they want when they want it," and they propose to have it at the expense of everyone involved—even the one they claim to love "better than life."

Such a letter came to me the other day from a girl who has become entangled in an unhappy love affair. The man in the case was older and had obligations, in regard to which he was making every effort to be loyal. But the girl persisted in writing to him, calling him up on the telephone, making occasions to meet him, when he was honestly trying to forget her. And when the strain of the whole thing was telling cruelly on his health.

She explained the heading pursuit of her victim by saying: "I love him more than life itself," while love, real love, that is, was conspicuously absent from the entire affair. She was indulging a morbid, selfish passion at the expense bitterly selfish passion at the expense of everyone—the man especially.

Then there is the man who "reserves" a place in a girl's affections without definitely making up his mind whether or not he will eventually claim it. The whole procedure has the cool, businesslike quality of having a ticket—put aside for the opera or theater. It may be called for, or it may not, dependent on circumstances.

The young man may meet some one whose society he would prefer to the opera or the theatre, and he lets the ticket go by default.

"I have made her promise not to go with anyone else," such young men write to me continually, "but I have resolutely kept from saying anything about marriage. Do you think I am right?"

And I hasten to assure such correspondents, with all the vehemence at my command, that their conduct is absolutely selfish. A girl is entitled to a little more consideration than a theatre ticket. Why should she spend years of precious youth at the beck and call of a man who may, or may not, have in mind to reward her devotion by marriage? If he decides to marry, she may be the favored one, if he can afford it, or if he is relieved of certain obligations that he now has to consider; but prudence counsels him not to commit himself.

And, after a long account of the various forms of caution behind which he has barricaded himself—being duly careful never to mention marriage, never to give anything but perishable presents, not to raise hopes by making love—such a young man has the effrontery to tell me, in confidence, he "cares deeply about the girl."

"From such love as this, Good Lord deliver us," any girl would be justified in adding to her prayers nightly.

Seizing His Chance

"Have you heard, dear," said the girl in the plum-colored velour, "that the Bizzlewicks are giving a grand coming-out party for their daughter, Gertie, next Monday?"

She in the yellow trench coat looked her amazement.

"But, surely, darling," she exclaimed, "Gertie came out four years ago, or was it five?"

"Yes, but the old man made a lot of money lately, and now they're in another set."

He Hadn't Done It

Johnny approached the teacher in fear and trembling. Tears glistened in his eyes, his lips trembled piteously. He was a moving sight.

In a voice broken with sobs he asked:

"I can a boy be punished for s-something he hasn t done

The teacher's eyes flashed indignantly.

"Of course not" she said

"We-well," said Johnny timidly, "I haven't done my arithmetic."

Interesting Story of Love at Cross Purposes of Two Sisters and a Man

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER LV.

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

"OH!" Katie looked surprised. "Is Miss Hooven going to be back to dinner after all?"

"No," Mildred tried to speak naturally. "She is not. But a friend of ours—Mr. Chandler, you know—has been ordered back to camp tomorrow. He may be going over to France very soon—may even be killed before we ever see him again."

She paused at the Irish girl's exclamation of pity. "Oh, the poor young man. Ain't war the dreadful thing, Miss Mildred?"

"Indeed it is," Mildred agreed. "And as it is the duty of all of us women to cheer the soldiers as much as we can, Mrs. Higgins would like me to ask Mr. Chandler to stay here to dinner tonight. It is too bad she cannot come down herself—but she will feel better to know that I have someone to talk to and that our guest is receiving the hospitality which is his due."

She had uttered her speech so rapidly that she now paused, out of breath.

"Yes, ma'am," Katie rejoined. "Of course if Mrs. Higgins says so, it's all right. But we're not having much for dinner. Only cold roast lamb and two vegetables—and coffee."

"Is that all?" Mildred looked blank. "That is pretty plain fare for a janker, isn't it? Haven't we anything else in the house?"

"Yes, we have canned soup and a couple of apple pies. But those were for tomorrow's Sunday dinner."

Millie Orders Dinner

"We'll have one can of soup and one pie tonight," Mildred said firmly. "There are other cans of soup in the house, and one pie will be all we need for tomorrow. I will take the responsibility," she added, seeing the expression of doubt creep into Katie's eyes.

It pays to be kind, Mildred reflected as she went back to her guest. Had she not given Katie permission to go out this afternoon the maid might have spoken some criticism of the arrangements for this evening.

Tom talked steadily for the hour preceding dinner, but it was largely about himself. Mildred wished that he would make the conversation more general and tell her how much he missed her when he was away from her.

At last she broke in upon his discourse. "How long do you suppose it will be before you get back to Fairlands again?" she asked.

"Fairlands? I may be sent right over to France, you know," he replied. "I hope so."

"You hope so!" she protested. "Do you really want to run the risk of getting killed or wounded?"

"I want to do what I enlisted to do," he insisted. "I want to get a hack at the Germans. Every redblooded man wants to do that."

Then he stopped, as if suddenly remembering that the man to whom his hostess was engaged had shown no desire in this direction.

"Naturally," he added, "all men cannot do what they want. But I am fortunate in that I am absolutely independent."

In the dining-room the dinner bell tinkled. When there were not regular guests Katie always rang the dinner bell. But if this was not heard she would come to announce each meal. She evidently did not consider tonight's dinner a "company affair."

Mildred sprang up. "There's the dinner bell!" she said. "Please excuse me while I run up and see if Mrs. Higgins is comfortable. I will be right down."

A Sudden Consideration

On her way she paused at the dining-room door. "Katie," she remarked, "I am just going up to make sure that Mrs. Higgins wants nothing."

"Shan't I go?" Katie offered.

"Indeed, no. You have to be on your feet enough without my making you run any more than is absolutely necessary. And, by the way, Katie, when you see Mrs. Higgins, do not mention the pie and the soup, please. I will tell her about them in the morning—but she is so nervous that the least little thing upsets her at night. I want her to keep her mind quiet."

"Very well," Katie assented. Her young mistress had granted her so many favors that she could afford to comply with her wishes and to seem as dull as Mildred wished to think she was.

"And you can go out this evening, if you want to," Mildred continued. Mr. Chandler has to leave early, so I will have the whole evening to give to Mrs. Higgins. And," as she saw Katie's grin of delight, "you might take Mrs. Higgins' dinner up to her and stay there with her while we are having our coffee. That will spare me the trouble of going up before Mr. Chandler leaves—and will get the dinner out of the way so you can wash your dishes early. But remember, do not let Mrs. Higgins talk too much. It is not good for her."

Whateley's Wit

Many stories have been told of the wit of Archbishop Whateley. On one occasion he asked a candidate for admission to Holy Orders what was the difference between a form and a ceremony. The candidate having racked his brain for an answer without success the Archbishop explained: "The difference is this—you sit upon a form, but you stand on ceremony." Once, at a gathering of clergy, he put the question, "Why do white sheep eat more than black ones?" And, there being no correct answer, though several attempts at a solution were made, the Archbishop himself gave the answer: "Simply because there are more of them."

Warned by Experience

Having taken rooms at a Continental hotel without inquiring as to the tariff, an Englishman, when about to leave, was presented with a bill which he considered outrageously excessive. He paid without complaining, however, but on being handed his receipt for the money he inquired if the cashier would oblige him with a couple of five-franc pieces. The cashier immediately produced the coins; then the visitor exclaimed, as if the thought had suddenly occurred to him, "Oh, but wait; I forgot to ask how much you would charge me for them!"

Stocks Advanced in New York at Midday

STEEL ISSUES AND MOTORS RALLY

Shipping Shares Are a Strong Group in an Active Market

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks had improved in New York by afternoon, there having been a rally at midday in which steels and motors were leaders. U. S. Steel showed a fractional gain at that time, while most active issues followed it upward. The advance brought out a fresh supply of stock and prices eased off to some extent within the next hour. Oils were above their lowest level, but remained weak. There was not much change in coppers, nor in rails. Shipping shares were strong and there were a number of specialties to show gains. The price range was narrow, viewing the list in its entirety from the start. Traders were awaiting events which would give the market a definite trend. Its weakness was largely due to indecision. Trading was of good volume and very active during the first hour, when transactions totalled nearly 300,000 shares.

ADVANCES AND DECLINES.

Among declines at 2 o'clock were U. S. Steel, ⅜ at 97¼; Mexican Petroleum, 2 at 178; Pan American, 1¾ at 78⅝; Royal Dutch, old, 1⅜ at 82⅜; new, 2½ at 89½; Anaconda, ⅝ at 60¼; Utah Copper, ½ at 72¼; Hide & Leather preferred, 1 at 96¼; Baldwin, ¼ at 87½; Reading, ½ at 84¼, and Union Pacific, ¾ at 128⅜.

Gains included Bethlehem B, ¼ at 67; Crucible, ¼ at 66¼; Republic Steel, ¾ at 82; American Sugar, ⅜ at 125¼; International Corporation, ⅝ at 71¾; Marine preferred, 2¾ at 112, common, ½ at 27⅛; Atlantic Gulf, ¼ at 112¾; General Motors, ⅜ at 159; Maxwell, ½ at 35; Sinclair Oil, 1¼ at 46⅜; United Cigar Stores, ¼ at 133¼; Corn Products, ⅞ at 53⅝, and Wilson, 1¼ at 82½.

BULL COUNTRIES SCARED.

As regards trading sentiment, a news dispatch says: "There was a general disposition to regard the situation as being determined by the character of the press dispatches from Paris. At the same time some of the bullish combinations which had been buyers of stocks on a large scale for the past two weeks seemed to have been frightened out of their positions by the large offerings of stocks by the uptown and Cotton Exchange group. These interests were heavy sellers, especially of Mexican Pete and Steel common."

INT. PRODUCTS A FEATURE.

The Boston market had a steady start, but soon reflected weakness in New York and the list here became irregular as to price changes. International Products was the feature, it opening with a point gain at 38 and selling as high as 40 during the morning. Ahmeek was the strongest copper. There was not much trading in mining issues. Calumet & Hecla sold at its highest since its dividend declaration was deferred.

Afternoon gains in Boston included International Products 1½ at 38½; Ahmeek 1 at 65; United Fruit 1 at 169; West End ¼ at 43 and Island Oil ⅜ at 8⅜. Among declines were United Shoe ¾ at 48¼; Stewart ¼ at 39½; Massachusetts Electric preferred ½ at 5; Copper Range ⅛ at 41 and American Telephone ¼ at 104½.

MARKET WEAK AT OPENING.

The market opened rather weak but declines were fractional on initial transactions and trading was in small lots. Business grew in volume the first fifteen minutes and was on considerable scale during the first hour. As usual on such movements trading slackened after a rally from the lowest level. Steels, motors, oils, rails and equipments were all weak. Coppers recovered more quickly than any other group. A few issues showed strength, including Wesson & Co., Sinclair Oil, Chile Copper and International Corporation. Buying of Wilson was largely on behalf of Chicago.

EUROPEAN NEWS DISTURBING.

There were few buying orders received over the holiday and the market lacked outside support at the start. Room traders were bearish and pool operations were not resumed. Wall Street is disturbed by European news and the delay in formulating peace. The decline in sterling exchange is causing concern. In fact, the situation in general was construed this morning as little calculated to promote an advance in the valuation of securities. Some disappointment is expressed that the reduction of steel product prices has not caused buying of magnitude. In the trade, however, it is said that it is too early to pass judgment on the effect of the move.

National Union Bank declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent., payable April 1 to stockholders of record at the close of business today.

Directors of the Pond Creek Coal Company declared a dividend of 25 cents per share. This is at the rate of $1 a year, compared with declaration three months ago at the rate of $1.50 a year. Dividend is payable April 1 to stock of record March 28.

U. S. IN NEED OF A BUILDING BOOM

Country's Steel Plant Capacity Far Ahead of Structural Orders

The reduction of prices for structural steel will, it is believed, cause a great expansion of building construction in this country, although it is doubtful if such a movement gets a fair start until the next Liberty Bond issue is placed. After government needs are provided for, means can be found to finance building. During the war most of the new large buildings in the United States were erected for munition production or to answer the government's army and navy needs. When the great conflict stopped building practically ceased for several months.

ORDERS FAR BELOW CAPACITY.

This was reflected by the steel and other trades. Not since statistics have been kept was the demand for structural steel so small as in January last. The new business booked by steel companies in that month was approximately 21,500 tons only, or about 12 per cent. of an estimated capacity of 180,000 tons a month. There was no improvement worth while last month. This month consumers awaited the expected reduction in prices and did comparatively little.

For years steel plants have had capacity for structural production far in excess of the country's demands but last year orders totalled but little more than half of the possible output, booking amounting to about 56 per cent. of capacity. For the six previous years bookings were: 59 per cent. in 1917; 72 per cent. in 1916; 73 per cent. in 1915; 52½ per cent. in 1914; 63 per cent. in 1913 and 85 per cent. in 1912.

WHY BUILDING LAGGED.

The Department of Labor has been trying to learn the reason for curtailment of building operations, and in some sections it is attributed to the high cost of materials and labor, and in others to inability to obtain constructive loans. According to a report by this government department there is a large demand for dwellings and tenement houses in New England and the Middle Atlantic States, while almost all Pennsylvania towns are deficient in buildings. In Ohio, Indiana and Illinois there is a shortage in dwellings, with occasional demand for schools and factories. More dwellings are needed in Colorado, California, Utah and Washington, while in the South and Southwest there is demand for business buildings, particularly in Texas and Louisiana.

COPPER CONSUMERS HAVE SMALL STOCKS

Recent buying of copper metal at 15 cents a pound or better has created interest in the amount of supplies held by consumers. While governments and mining companies are oversupplied, corporations and concerns using it in manufacturing are said to have very limited amounts on hand. If their business improves they will have to order a very large amount of red metal. But most users have been curtailing operations. Brass mills are running about 20 per cent. of capacity, wire companies have received little new business this year and traction companies lack money with which to extend lines or renew equipment. Sheet copper manufacturers depend largely upon the building trade, which has been very dull for months.

Buying of copper this month has been on the largest scale known for such a period since October, total March bookings to date being given as 75,000,000 poupnds. In regard to foreign buying, a local financial publication says: "The drop in sterling exchange is cited as operating seriously against English importations of copper. At $4.62 exchange shows a decline of a little over 2½ per cent., compared with the rate that was in effect up to last Thursday and on copper this is equal to about £2 per ton.

WAR FINANCE FUNDS TO AID RAILROADS

Washington, March 26.—Funds to meet their April first requirements will be advanced to railroads under federal control by the War Finance Corporation, Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass announced today.

Oil Statistics for 1918

According to the Bureau of Mines, refineries in the United States used 326,024,630 barrels of crude oil in 1918, an increase of 10,892,949 over 1917, when refineries ran 315,131,681 barrels. From this crude oil, 85,007,452 barrels of gasoline were manufactured; 32,460,955 of kerosene; 174,316,608 of gas and fuel oil; 200,349,423 of lubricating oil and 30,635,961 of miscellaneous oils.

FREE SELLING CAUSES COTTON LIQUIDATION

New York, March 26.—Further liquidation was in progress at the opening of the cotton market today. It broke old-style contracts on the call partly 45 points under the close on Monday, while new-style contracts opened unchanged to 14 points lower. Early selling by Liverpool commission houses, New Orleans and Japanese interests helped the decline, but after selling about 30 to 40 points under the previous close, new-style contracts rallied on buying, partly attributed to unsettled weather over the belt. At the end of the first twenty minutes the market was nervous and active, with the new pressure in evidence and a list about at the bottom.

Opening prices were: May, old, 23.40; new, 23.90; July, old, 21.60; new, 21.75; Aug., old, 20.50 bid; Oct., old, 19.50; new, 19.95; Dec., old, 18.95; new, 19.70; Jan., old, 19.50; new, 19.30.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, March 26.—Corn opened ½ to ⅝c higher. Oats were ⅜ to 1⅛c lower. Provisions opened unchanged. Opening prices were: Corn, March, $1.60; May, $1.48¼ to 1.48½; July, $1.38 to 1.38⅝. Oats, May, 67 to 67¼c; July, 66 to 66¼c. Pork, May, $44.25; July, $41.50. Lard, July, $27.40. Ribs, May, $24.60; July, $23.60.

AMERICAN RAILS THE BEST AND CHEAPEST

It is reported from Birmingham, England, that when the manager of the Tramways Corporation was criticized for ordering 1,000 tons of steel rails from the Lorraine Company of Cleveland, O., at 335s per ton he said only two English and one American bids had been received. The American bid was cheapest and offered earliest delivery.

He also said that English-made rails had proved unequal to the strain.

Cuba's Sugar Outlook

Sugar receipts at Cuban ports up to March 15 were 1,222,662 tons against 1,387,037 for the corresponding period a year ago and in some quarters it is doubted if Cuban production this year will reach 4,000,000 tons as predicted. Last season's output was 3,446,083 tons.

*Closed in July.

In salaries alone, it cost the counties $422,665.14 in 1918. Other expenses came to $605,011.35, making a total expense of $1,028,676.49, with total receipts on $117,679.19. The average net cost per prisoner in county institutions was $482.56, against an average net cost of $262.37 for each inmate of a State-operated institution.

EACH PRISONER COST COUNTIES $482.56

Prison Records Also Show That State Paid $262.37 for Each Inmate

Bay State counties paid out an average of $482.56 net for each inmate of their correction institutions during 1918.

The State, on the other hand, paid out but $262.37 net for each inmate of a State-controlled institution.

The State Prison kept each inmate last year at an average cost of $212.12. The Newburyport Jail, on the other hand, paid for each inmate $1,146.56 until it was closed in July, 1918.

These are some of the figures dug up today from the records of the Bureau of Prisons of Massachusetts.

SALARIES ARE $422,665.14.

In salaries of officials of jails and houses of correction alone, it cost the counties $422,665.14 in 1918. Other expenses came to $605,011.35. The total expenses of these institutions, under county management, was $1,028,676.49. Total receipts from their industries and other sources totalled but $117,597.19.

In 1918 it cost the State prison $312.12 per prisoner; the Massachusetts Reformatory, $289.79; the Reformatory for Women, $246.01, and for each inmate of the Prison Camp and Hospital it cost $421.96.

There were 1,453 inmates of State institutions in 1918, divided as follows: State Prison, 570; Massachusetts Reformatory, 446; Reformatory for Women, 303; Prison Camp and Hospital, 133.

In county jails and houses of correction, instances have been found where there were more paid officials connected with the institution than there were inmates.

It cost a Boston jail (Charles street) $400.33 net per capita in 1918; Cambridge (East Cambridge) $459.74; Dedham $553.44; Deer Island $522.61; Fitchburg $546.63; Lawrence $433.53; Lowell $670.88; New Bedford $457.10; Northampton $515.78; Pittsfield $691.06; Plymouth $589.26; Salem $431.97; Worcester $365.85.

REPORT CONDITIONS IMPROPER.

The report of the special commission relative to control, custody and treatment of defectives, criminals and misdemeanants (House No. 1403) rendered in February, 1919, says under the heading of "The County Institutions, under the management of fourteen boards of county commissioners:

"The large discrepancy now existing between the capacity of these institutions and the number of inmates present appears to be due to abnormal economic conditions. One jail has been closed within the year. Others, though remaining open, have only a small proportion of their usual population. In the population of our county institutions at the close of 1918 were 351 men and women awaiting trial, still innocent in the eyes of the law, yet thrown by the nature of their housing conditions and in spite of the efforts of the management, into contact with vagrants, drunks, wife-beaters, thieves, pickpockets, burglars and prisoners guilty of sex offences. Especially is this true of the female inmates."

Further along in this same report it says:

"The upkeep and maintenance cost of these county institutions is high, averaging $11.22 per week, net, for each inmate. If the six populous houses in the large cities be taken from the total, the net weekly per capita of those institutions located in the smaller centres of population jumps to $12.67. The corresponding figure for the three State institutions is $6.61."

Were the county institutions taken over by the State, as has been recommended, there is little question but what many of them would be done away with by consolidation, and many of the officials connected with them, as well as guards, would be legislated out of office.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that in 1918 sheriffs of nine Bay State counties were keepers of jails and masters of houses of correction as well. According to their returns for 1918, which will shortly be made public, a total of $225,164.36 was received and expended by keepers of jails and houses of correction for the twelve months ending December 31. Of these receipts $11,813.93 was for board of prisoners; $75,147.83 was for labor of prisoners, and $61,700.26 came from sale of materials.

U. S. LOAN BANKS PLAN OF LABOR DEPARTMENT

Washington, March 26.—A system of Federal home loan banks will be advocated in the next Congress, it was announced today, by the Division of Public Works and Construction Developments of the Department of Labor.

The proposed legislation will permit organization of regional banks, capitalized by the associations and operated under government supervision, also a regional bank, which would perform for building associations a service similar to that of the Federal reserve bank.

OIL MEN FEAR U. S. RULE; PLAN UNION

Chicago, March 26.—Consumption of oil in recent years has increased so rapidly that the price of oil will not go lower, according to 500 representatives of oil companies of Central and Western States. The conference is expected to develop a union to protect the industry against too much Federal regulation.

ALASKAN COAL FIELDS ARE TO BE SURVEYED

Washington, March 26.—A commission leaves April 1 for Alaska to make surveys looking to the opening up of the Matanuska coal fields.

England's Good Sense Is an Example for America

The British commission appointed to make educational improvements has recommended the increased teaching of German in British schools and colleges.

Your true Briton has his spasms of emotion, and even of hysteria, but he never long lets go of his common sense. And he thoroughly understands that the war is over and that the sooner the peoples of the world resume normal ways of thinking and acting the better it will be for all peoples.

Here at home we still have a few silly men and women who think that they exhibit patriotism by trying to raise a hullabaloo against the German language, German music and even German names.

The silliness of such action is best shown by the fact that at least 20 per cent. of our fighting men have German names.

Workers' New Demands Must Be Met More Than Half Way

Conditions in Great Britain are very serious.

The soldiers are impatient at being kept any longer under arms.

The people are insistently clamoring for demobilization.

The English, Scotch, Welsh and Irish labor unions are striking from one end of the empire to the other or threatening to strike. Labor everywhere is restive and insistent upon gaining new demands.

The British press looks upon the situation with grave alarm. Some of the London newspapers go so far as to predict revolution in case the government does not handle the strike situation with celerity and skill.

While the labor unions are without exception demanding shorter hours—and the majority of them are also demanding an increase of wages—the complaint which they all make in common is that the Peace Congress is wasting week after week in talk and not doing anything concrete and definite.

The British people are saying, just as the American people are saying, that they want their soldiers out of the army and at home. And every week that the proclamation of peace is delayed increases the volume of this sentiment and adds to the asperity with which the British people voice it.

We do not know, of course, how matters will turn out in Great Britain, but we do know that the British Junkers and the French Junkers and the Italian Junkers—and American Junkers, too—ought to have sense enough to realize that they will go the way of the Russian Junkers and the German Junkers and the Austrian Junkers unless they meet the new demands of the workers more than half way.

The working people of the civilized world have everywhere seen a new light; have everywhere acquired a new consciousness of their power, their rights and their importance.

It makes no difference to them that prime ministers and marshals and generals and diplomats strut in the limelight for the time being on the great stage of the world.

For they know—these workers of the world—that they themselves, with their own sacrifices and their own sufferings and their own courage and their own armies fought and won the great war whose principal and final glorious result they have determined shall be a new freedom, and a new existence, and a new world for the men and women who do the work of the world.

In Russia that sentiment has resulted in armed and successful revolution.

In other parts of Europe it has resulted in unsuccessful but costly and bloody attempts at revolution.

In Germany it has resulted in the successful establishment of democratic government whose institutions, including universal suffrage for men and women and a parliament freely chosen by proportional representation, are as liberal and as free as those of any nation in the world; and in France and in Italy and in Great Britain, and in the United States, too, this new consciousness of the workers must be recognized or else there will be most serious trouble.

The day of Junkerdom is over. It is face to face with its doom.

And Junkerdom can either accept its doom gracefully or accept it violently.

But whether it leaves the stage or civilization easily and quickly, or whether it is swept away in the storms and tempests of riot and revolution, it still must leave the stage.

This is the age of the plain people, and they mean hereafter to assume the direction of the affairs of mankind.

ALWAYS GIVE A FULL EXPLANATION

When you want to put something across, do you make an intellectual appeal to reason, or do you, in loud voice, begin by saying, "Now I tell you," or "I say" so and so?

That is just where you weaken the effect of what you really desire to make forceful.

You are not concerned to explain why you think "so and so" should be done, but you think it sufficient that you say it should be done, don't you?

You are much mistaken if you think the bare bones of your thought are going to be taken, without any ifs or ands or therefores.

If you would clothe that skeleton of thought or idea so that the nature of the beast could be understood, then your say-so might be proven beyond a doubt.

Americans, you know, are free to be original, and the good old stock is not given to following, like sheep.

It has been an old-world fundamental to take one man's say-so, and it has been ruinous to the peoples as a whole, and individually.

We don't want it here.

Americans respect fundamental, God-made laws, and make their biggest success in mind influencing mind is logical, orderly thought. An honest thought, logically hinged—an intellectual appeal—that counts.

Ye TOWN GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.—In our town there lives a dear old lady who has been sick for over a year. The 13th of March was her eighty-third birthday. In the morning there came a package from a friend in another city, and in the package was a beautiful bunch of red carnations and a card with just: "Congratulations of Ella B." As we smelled the flowers our cat, whose name is Thomas Woodrow, came and meowed and stood up on his hind legs and smelled the flowers and then sat down and purred and looked just human.

And mother, who has been sleeping nearly all day for the longest time, just kept her eyes open all day long feasting on the beautiful flowers. Ella B. and I both dote on you, and you can thank her better than I and tell people in general to remember old people while they are living and not keep the flowers until they are gone. I thank you.

DEAR ELLA B.
FOR WHOEVER it is.
WHO WROTE the letter.
AND FOR HER mother.
ON HER eighty-third birthday.
I'M WRITING to you.
ON BEHALF of all mothers.
WHEREVER THEY are.
AND OF all old folk.
WHOEVER THEY are.
JUST TO tell their thanks.
FOR THE joy you sent.
TO ONE of them.
AND THE pity is.
IN THIS day and age.
WITH THE world messed up.
THAT SO many of us.
HAVE RAISED the line.
THAT OUR vision takes.
AND WE look far off.
WHILE RIGHT at our doors.
AND RIGHT in our homes.
ARE HUNGRY hearts.
WE FORGET to feed.
AND THAT must be fed.
IF THEY shall live.
AND IF we shall live.
WITH OUR hearts tuned right.
AND, OF course, Ella B.
IT ISN'T the flowers.
THAT WE send forth.
WITH THE joy they plant.
IN A mother's heart.
SO MUCH as it is.
THAT BEYOND the flowers.
A FRIENDSHIP lies.
AND DOESN'T forget.
AND IT was that.
THAT THIS mother saw.
AND THAT gladdened her eyes.
ON HER natal day.
AND THE best of it was.
THAT THE joy you sent.
PERVADED THE home.
AND THE daughter wrote.
TO TELL it to me.
AND THE Thomas cat.
SAT UP and purred.
AND I sit here.
AND WRITE it down.
AND WHEREVER it goes.
IT WILL carry warmth.
INTO OTHER hearts.
AND THAT'S what you did.
WHEN YOU didn't forget.
AND YOU bought the flowers.
FOR THE little old mother.
IN HER twilight days.

I THANK you.

Letters to the Editor

America First

Editor Boston American:

Mr. Hearst's ringing demand for the revival of "the great American principle of protection" comes at a time when it is refreshing to hear a voice raised for American interests and American policies.

As Colonel Harvey so well says, "If America has a single advocate among our representatives at the conference there is no sign of it yet. They represent humanity, but humanity did not elect them. And if that league is formed its first president will represent humanity, with not a single representative out of the nine devoted to the interests of the United States." Every nation at the peace conference, except America, is carefully safeguarding its own essential interests. England has forced the withdrawal of the demand for "the freedom of the seas," and is seeking guarantees for her territorial integrity. France is demanding security for her frontiers; Italy an extension of her domain, and Japan the removal of restrictions on immigration.

The war would have been lost had it not been for the industrial development and economic power of the United States. That development was made possible by the American protective tariff policy, the revival of which Mr. Hearst demands in the interest of national welfare and prosperity. In the economic struggle which will follow the war a protective tariff is our only effective weapon. As we lay away our swords and our rifles, let every soldier and civilian demand, with Mr. Hearst, that the nation be equipped with an adequate tariff, in order that the welfare of our workmen and the stability of our industries may be safeguarded with the fullest possible measure of industrial preparedness.

It is fair and just that the Boston American should lead in this policy of true Americanism.

THOMAS O. MARVIN,
Secretary, Home Market Club.

Charge Favoritism

Editor Boston American:

Kindly allow me a little space in your widely read journal to make known to the public the following facts concerning the Department of Utilities, Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass.

There are some six hundred men here, the majority of whom have been in the service more than eighteen months.

They have performed their duties creditably. The jobs they occupy here are so simple, in most cases, that any ordinary laborer, without experience, could perform them.

In the surrounding towns and cities thousands of men are unemployed. Why not give them an opportunity of enjoying camp life, and show gratitude to us for our faithful service and allow us to go home to our waiting positions?

Many of us here consider ourselves not as soldiers, but rather conscript laborers. Surely a grateful government does not expect its soldiers, in peace times, to work seven days a week, and often twelve hours per day.

Such things as favoritism exist here. By being silver tongued and good hand shakers men without dependents from this department have already gone back to civil life, while others with wives and parents at home in distress have to wait here until perhaps death will relieve them of such burdens.

Neither are we slackers of France. Such remarks are being made about this department.

We were informed by one of our officers that if we made any more remarks about getting discharged from the service that we would be compelled to eat and work and sleep under an armed guard from the 26th Infantry.

We hope your upright and noble stand in helping the soldiers, as no other Boston paper does, will see fit to circulate the above statements.

Thanking you in advance, we remain,

SIX HUNDRED STRONG.

Producing Milk

South African natives along the Orange River have an ingenious way of producing "milk." After cutting the top from a cocoanut, the native places the nut over the ashes, so that the warmth may cause the fat and "butter" contained in the husk to be absorbed by the milk; this changes the milk's quality and gives it a palatable taste. In order to deal with several nuts at a time, the natives construct rough "holders" from old iron hoops. The ashes are placed under the grating and the nuts set in it. Obviously, there must be no fire beneath the nuts, or they would be burned and the milk lost.

POINTING OUT THE POWER THAT LIES IN WORDS

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

WHAT would you do, if you were dissatisfied with your present job, and wanted to secure another which you felt would give you a wider opportunity?

That is the fix of a young man who has written to me.

He is twenty years old, a high school graduate with an additional year at college to his credit, and has had one year's business experience in an office position.

He doesn't see much of a future in his present place, however, and is consequently seeking an opening more in line with his ambitions.

He has advertised and answered ads, he says, has appealed to all his friends and acquaintances, and has followed up either by letter or by a personal call every chance of which he could hear; but all without results.

Baffled and at sea, he writes to ask me what he shall do. He has no doubt of his qualifications, and is perfectly sure that he can make good; but he seems unable to get the chance. What is the trouble?

One does not have to be the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter, or born under a veil to tell him. His difficulty, like most of those with which the rest of us are struggling, is entirely of his own making.

The Value of Words

According to the record, he has had the good fortune to receive a better education than the average young man; but with his knowledge he has failed in one very important respect to get understanding. He doesn't realize the value of words. He squanders them like a spendthrift. He pours them out in such a flood that he actually clutters his meaning.

He takes four closely written pages to present the facts regarding himself that I have stated above in four short paragraphs, and before he even approaches the subject matter of his letter, prefaces it with this introduction:

"I am forwarding this communication to you in the hope that you may be able to assist me in solving the problem I am confronted with."

"The nature of the problem itself is a very practical one, and one which no doubt has on innumerable occasions come to your notice. I am compelled, though, to resort to this method in attaining my ends, having tried all others and found them unsuccessful."

"What follows may seem to you to be no more than a voluminous and lengthy piece of fiction, unworthy of your serious attention. I can assure you, however, that it has been written in all sincerity, and is lengthy only because of my desire to tell you everything, in order that no fact may be wanting, should you be interested. And now to a specific mention, as brief as possible, of the facts in the case."

And he says he wants to effect a connection which will eventually lead to a position of executive's assistant where he can be of aid in handling the correspondence.

Frankly, I wouldn't engage Charles M. Schwab as office boy on the strength of a letter like that. Yet I am willing to wager that this lad was praised by his instructors in English when at school for his fluency and command of language.

Oh, good old Anglo-Saxon tongue! What crimes are committed in thy name!

Businesslike Brevity

I don't want to be either unfair or unkind. I realize that, as my correspondent says, in his desire to explain himself, and writing to a "literary lady," he has been unduly verbose; still that ponderous, Addisonian style of his is plainly a habit. And, if he is the sort of young fellow I think he is, he will not feel hurt, but thank me for pointing out a fault, which I believe is the chief bar to his success.

These are undoubtedly among the best work Christy has ever done, and the exquisite coloring adds to their attractiveness. With next Sunday's

Hungarian Bolshevism It Starts Virtuously "Supreme Being" in Paris To Make Church Masculine

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

"Washington sees German plotting in the alleged Bolshevik movement in Hungary."

That may be true. However there seems to be something more than German plotting in the Hungarian trouble, for English monitors, hurrying up the Danube towards Budapest, are fired upon by the Bolshevists. That looks too much like "business" to be treated as a mere rumor set afloat to hurry the peace league.

Hungary seems to be taking its Bolshevism virtuously. Russian Bolshevists are said to have restored the alcoholic drinks that the Czar eliminated, just before his subjects eliminated him. In Hungary, all drinking is forbidden. Ten thousand dollars is the fine for selling drink, two thousand the fine for drinking. This will make life dull in the "Queen of England's" and other hotels along the Danube, where the Tziganes played in the court in different days.

The peace commission is said to have changed the covenant, in part, to meet the objections of Senator Lodge and other Republican Senators.

An American clergyman, at the request of his congregation, has sent a cablegram requesting the peace commission to recognize officially the existence of a "supreme being." That may come later. The league has recognized the existence of a Republican party, which is a start.

At least two millions of human beings gathered yesterday in New York to watch a parade of soldiers. At the head of the parade was a gun carriage painted black covered with purple flowers and drawn by ten horses with empty saddles. This represented the one thousand and odd dead of the 27th of New York. It was a long parade, lasting hours. If all the dead, killed in the war, could have sent their ghosts to walk in line, and all the dead killed by disease following the war, nearly twenty million dead in all, it would have been a long procession, weeks in passing.

The line of dead that never come back, that did not hear the music or the cheering yesterday, lons enough already, will be made much longer unless in Paris some way is found to wipe out the spirit of hatred and revenge that will breed more war and more killing for the rest of this century.

There is a movement on foot "to make the church more masculine, more virile." Women have been asked to offer suggestions and this has caused surprise. The surprised ones say that men, not women, can tell how to make the church masculine.

It is a fact, however, according to evolution, that women in choosing husbands to be the fathers of their children, have developed masculine energy.

The woman who lived in the cave with a piece of bear skin around her waist and fretted about her toothless, red-haired baby, wanted a man around the place able to protect it against bears or other cave men. The man that would fight instead of running away was chosen for the head of the house, if he could be found. So the children had fierce masculine fathers.

This developed physical strength and as fighting required thinking as well as muscle, it also developed dew thinking.

One difficulty, perhaps, is that when it comes to the church which women largely support by their piety, women haven't the same interest in rugged manhood as they used to have in the cave days, and are inclined to pay more attention to a sweet voice and a pretty face than to a shaggy beard, a protruding jaw or a well developed bicep.

The ordinary citizen wonders WHY the church wants to be more masculine. It needs kindness to children, turning the other cheek, doing good for evil, accepting meekly the sorrows of this world, knowing that perpetual joy is coming hereafter. It would not seem especially to demand masculinity.

There was something fine about the early Christians in the Roman arena as they marched out to the lions and gladiators, looked upward professing their faith and refused to fight, content to show how courageously they could die. The Catholic priest who travelled alone trying to convert Indians in the early days in this country and endured torture, with courage as great as any Indian could show, probably did more to convert the savages than he could have done by saying, "I can lick any Indian in this tribe," and then proving it.
